WARD 8 ASSAULT ON STORROW MAN

"WORKING FOR STORROW IN WARD 8"

Ernest Everett Smith, Harvard graduate and State street banker, after being beaten at booth in Precinct 1, Ward 8, while working for Storrow. Snapshot by Boston American photographer.

STORROW OUT EARLY TO WORK AT THE POLLS

The expected clash between James J. Storrow, candidate for Mayor, and Martin M. Lomasney, the Ward 8 leader on the Fitzgerald side, which was expected to occur at precinct 1, Ward 8, early today, failed to materialize, possibly because Mr. Lomasney was not there.

There was some excitement at precinct 1 polling place during the morning. A Storrow worker, Ernest Smith, received some political opposition in the shape of a vicious swing in the face.

But the Storrow-Lomasney bout, which some enthusiasts anticipated, never came off.

Mr. Storrow was down at the polling booth—and a mighty cold corner it was—at 6:40. At this witching hour, while Mr. Storrow was shivering in the breezes which blew over from the unexpurgated Charles river, Martin M. Lomasney was snugly ensconced in the inner office of the Hendricks Club.

If wind and cold damage count for anything then Mr. Storrow drew the short end of the affair, for Lomasney was comfortable all the while as a bug in a rug.

Storrow Out Early.

Mr. Storrow arrived at precinct 1, Ward 8, polling booth at the corner of Lowell and Minot streets before daylight. The cold and darkness was made only more intense by the pleasure gleam of an occasional lantern.

Since 5:30 o'clock "Pete" McKirdy has been at the polling place to look out for the Lomasney-Fitzgerald end of the election. The Storrow automobile there is in charge of "Big Tim" Crowley.

When the Storrow automobile whirled up to the corner, Mr. Storrow hopped out and stamped energetically on the cold and frozen ground. He was wrapped in a big fur coat, with fur gloves and purring Fedora hat.

Storrow workers started Storrow cheers. Just then a car may was driven up. The driver checked his horses, stood up and bawled: "Three cheers for Fitz." The cheers were given so loudly that the Storrow cheering was drowned.

Vastly pleased with his work, the drayman howled again: "Three more cheers for Fitz." The Fitzgerald workers shouted so loudly that the Storrowites gave up the cheering battle. The Storrow cheers only served to make the Fitzgerald cheering sound all the louder. So what was the use?

Ordered to Move On.

About the first thing that happened to Mr. Storrow after exchanging greetings with his workers was to be requested to get out of the way by a policeman. The voting booth was so near a big freight shed that only a narrow lane was left open for would-be voters. In order to watch matters Mr. Storrow started to stand in this passageway.

"Move on," said the cop.

"All right," said the candidate, "I'll get out into the snow."

And he stepped out into the roadway where the undiscerning cop had a better sweep at him.

Then Mr. Storrow remained at Precinct 1 booth till 7:10, when he went up and on a round of the other polling places in Ward 8. At no place did he see a sign of Martin M. Lomasney. For the first time in twenty years Lomasney was not at his voting booth for State and city elections. He was working on the job of opening up of the polls and stay till the last man had cast his ballot.

But at the last State election, it was explained, Lomasney didn't get over the early start with the Storrowites gave up the work by telephone.

Mr. Storrow returned to precinct 1 shortly before 8 o'clock. While he was waiting there word was brought to him that he was needed in Ward 11. He started for that ward at once.

Shortly after noon Martin Lomasney left the Hendricks Club to cast his ballot at precinct 1, as usual.

SENTENCE CHINESE SLAYER FRIDAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Mutuda Wong, who shot and killed Chong Lock Wing, the Chinese Vice-Consul, in this city, July 21 last, has pleaded guilty and will be sentenced Friday. Wong was permitted to plead to a charge of second degree murder. The prisoner had remained imprisoned of the Consul. On receiving a final refusal and being ordered from the consular office, Wong shot and killed Wing.

Fiercest Election Contest in Boston's History Culminates in Small Riot; Storrow Worker Attacked, Chases Assailant.

The first party less election in Boston to day was the most turbulent municipal election in the city's history. Hardly had the polls been opened when one man was attacked in Ward 8 and beaten with brass knuckles. An additional force of policemen, called for by Mr. Storrow, was rushed to this precinct.

The biggest vote in Boston's history was brought out. Automobiles were on hand to carry every voter to the polls who wished to make use of them. Men who were unable to walk because of illness were tenderly carried from their homes and taken to the polling booths. Men were removed from hospitals in the same way.

Excitement in All Sections.

The excitement in many sections of the city reached fever heats during the closing hours, when it was declared that many men employed might be prevented from leaving their work to cast their ballots. This report came from South Boston.

At 2 o'clock it was figured that 82 per cent. of the vote of Ward 8 had been cast. This was regarded as a fair criterion of the vote cast throughout the city. All of the Mayoralty candidates had voted by this time.

Deputy Police Superintendent Warren issued strict orders to all the captains in the city to see that the law was not violated by ward heelers soliciting votes within the legal limits at the various polling booths. Reports had reached police headquarters that this law had been violated.

Beat Up Harvard Man.

Ernest Everett Smith, once a noted oarsman of Harvard, was attacked near the polling booth of Precinct 1, Ward 8, early to-day, and his chin nose fractured in two places.

For six blocks Smith pursued his assailant, but his attempt to catch him was frustrated by his knowledge. Smith had apparently been waiting to help him escape.

Mrs. Smith, to whom he was married two years ago, and who is a sister of Mrs. Jacob Ilfe of New York, hearing that her husband had been attacked, dashed over the way after some friends in a taxi before she found her husband. She induced him to return home with her.

The police have a description of Smith's assailant, and they expect to capture him before night. Smith is connected with the banking firm of Perry, Coffin & Burr, of No. 60 State street. Here is Smith's own story of the attack:

Smith's Story of Assault.

"I left the polling booth in precinct 1 of Ward 8 shortly after 7 o'clock and went to a drug store on Lowell street to purchase some cigars. As I left the store I noticed a group of six or eight men on the sidewalk, but thought nothing of it. While

FIRE ENGINE BREAKS IN RUN

Fire started at 12:15 p. m. in the basement of the building at No. 44 Dorchester street and No. 582 Atlantic avenue, occupied by Harold L. Bond & Co., dealers in contractors' supplies. A stock of hemp, oakum and jute was damaged $1,500. While going to the fire the pole of Engine 39 was broken and the apparatus was sent home for repairs. Because of the dangerous locality, Fire Commissioner Parker went in his auto from department headquarters and remained on the scene till the flames were subdued.

NEW BANK CHARTER FOR SOMERVILLE

The State Board of Bank Incorporation to-day voted to grant a charter to the Somerville Institution for Savings. District Attorney John J. Higgins and former Mayor Grimmons of Somerville spoke for the petitioners. The bank building will be on Broadway, near Franklin street, Somerville. The company is the first to get a charter under the new general savings banks law.

INCOME TAX BILL SENT TO LEGISLATURE

The income tax amendment was sent to the Legislature this afternoon by Governor Draper. Unlike Governor Hughes of New York, Governor Draper gives no intimation to the Legislature in his message accompanying the measure, as to whether he would [illegible] it adopted or killed.

TWOMBLY DEAD, GRIEF IS CAUSE

MADISON, N. J., Jan. 11.—H. McK. Twombly, director of the New York Central and son-in-law of William H. Vanderbilt, died here to-day after an illness of several weeks' duration.

Mr. Twombly had been ill for a long time at Florham, his magnificent country home, where he died. Mrs. Twombly, who was a daughter of William H. Vanderbilt, and her two daughters, Ruth Twombly and Mrs. W. A. M. Burden, were at the bedside.

The real cause of his death was the loss of his son, H. McK. Twombly, Jr., who was drowned in Big Asquam Lake, near Ashland, New York, in 1906.

FITZGERALD AND HIBBARD VOTE: 'SURE TO WIN'

Both John F. Fitzgerald and Mayor Hibbard claimed the election when they went to booths to vote to-day.

Fitzgerald voted in Precinct 11 of Ward 24, the polling place being in the Bailey street schoolhouse. He cast his ballot at 12:07 o'clock. He was the five hundred and eighty-third man to vote there. There was a stir when he came to the polls. He walked jauntily and smiled.

"I am going to sweep the city," he said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "I will get more votes than Storrow, Hibbard and Taylor combined. Victory is already won."

Mayor Hibbard was just as sanguine when he voted in Precinct 4, Ward 24, his polling booth being at Ashmont and Adams streets. He voted at 8:58 o'clock. He said then:

"I'm sure of winning. I am the only Republican on the ticket. The other three candidates will split the Democratic vote."

Dorchester states make out a telephone complaint from Precinct 2, Ward 24, where Matthew Canning was employed as a Fitzgerald worker, that attempts were being made at Fitzgerald workers' to prevent Mayor Hibbard from voting. The police say their investigation did not disclose anything of the sort.

Miss Florence Lavoonie of Allston gave Ellis workers a scare up west when she was seen walking in front of the schoolhouse where Fitzgerald voted and then to hand papers to voters. She was directly her worker for Mrs. Julia Hall until they observed that the bag she carried was inscribed "votes for women."

The biggest vote ever known in Dorchester was polled to-day. There are about 11,000 registered voters in Ward 20 and by 1 o'clock 9,000 or more had voted. There are 7,478 in Ward 21 and about 5,000 of them had voted by noon.

LAWSON PLANS A $50,000,000 TOBACCO DEAL

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 11.—A Burley Tobacco Trust, with a capital of $50,000,000, to control the crops and pay a dividend of 6 per cent. yearly, is planned by Thomas W. Lawson of Boston, he announced to-day. Lawson's project includes the handling of the entire Kentucky, Virginia, Ohio and Indiana crops, comprising 300,000,000 pounds a year. The beneficiaries, according to the plans, will be the people and not the capitalists.

Lawson is here, conferring with officials of the Burley Society for the purchase of the 1909 crop, 160,000,000 pounds, for 20 cents a pound.

"The scheme of a popular trust has been my dream for years," said Mr. Lawson to-day. "I am going to carry it through. In that way the people—the workers who produce—will get the profits that in all the deals now in existence go to the capitalists.

Lawson left to-day for Boston. The Burley Society refused to discuss his plan.

HEAVIEST VOTE IN HISTORY OF BOSTON

Never in the political history of Boston was there such a record vote cast as that to-day.

Never was there an election attended with such intense interest.

Never was there an election so bitterly fought of the polls.

Skilled politicians figured out beforehand that a large vote would be polled but they did not think there would be such a tremendous vote, such an avalanche of ballots.

In the ballot at the polls thousands lent their aid and support to the respective candidates for the mayoralty, city council and school committee. It is estimated that more than 5,000 men worked all day long to get out the vote in behalf of their chosen leader.

In Charlestown, South Boston, East Boston and the West End there was a rush to the voting booths early in the day. In these districts from 60 to 75 per cent. of the total vote was cast in the few hours following the opening of the polls.

Taxicabs on the Jump.

Hundreds of autos and taxicabs tilted around the city, taking voters to the booths. A stranger could easily tell a voting booth by the number of autos clustered together.

Heroic scenes marked the voting in Ward 8. Ernest E. Smith, the old Harvard oarsman, and a Storrow worker, was attacked near the polling booth in Martin M. Lomasney's home precinct. He assailant escaped.

James J. Storrow spent the greater part of the day in Ward 8, Lomasney's strong hold. He visited every precinct.

Mr. Storrow voted at an early hour

ASSAULT VICTIM IN WARD 8 DESCRIBES ATTACK NEAR POLLS

passing to them one of them without a word stepped directly in front of me and struck me twice. From the nature of the injury I received on the right hand, I was unable to use it at all. I was unable to defend myself, and the assailant or assailants ran down Lowell street. I was then unconscious of what happened to me. I was taken to the Relief Hospital, where I received treatment for my injuries.

"The last I remember was that I was struck by the first blow. I did not feel any pain at the time. I was stunned and passed into unconsciousness. Knowing from the range of the blow that it could not come from behind, I believe that the assailant was the man who was standing directly in front of me when I was struck. As soon as I recovered from the effects of the assault they ran around the corner, but by that time my assailant had disappeared. I was taken to the Relief Hospital and there treated for a compound fracture of the nose, after which I returned to Precinct 3, Ward 8, and reported. Mrs. Smith had been making inquiries about my condition and had sent a carriage to find me, having learned that I had left the Relief Hospital. We followed one another in our cabs to several of the precincts in Ward 8 before we finally met.

Storrow Calls for Police.

James J. Storrow was near the election booth when the attack took place. He afterwards went to police headquarters and had a detail of policemen sent into Ward 8, two men to be placed inside each booth and two men on the outside.

The greatest excitement prevailed throughout the early forenoon over the trouble. It is believed that the attack was inspired by the action of Smith in relation to the illegal registrations. The election board last night had twelve names dropped from the voting list, four more transferred to other wards and another so marked that the man could not vote upon it.

It was two o'clock yesterday morning when Martin Lomasney, the Democratic leader of Ward 8, left the voting booth, which he had remained on guard in Precinct 1 during the day of polling. Mr. Storrow also left the booth today and became a watcher in his own interests. He was joined later by many of his lieutenants. One of them is Smith, Lomasney at this time was in the Hendricks Club, receiving reports there from his workers.

Smith was taken to the Relief Hospital and his injuries dressed. After remaining there a short time he insisted on going back to the voting booth, which is at the corner of Lowell and Minot streets, and remaining on guard.

Following the attack Mr. Storrow went to police headquarters and related the facts.

After an interview with Deputy Superintendent Warren of the police department Mr. Storrow succeeded in having arrangements made to have two men guard outside the voting booths in Ward 8 as well as before. The two men on duty will stay there.

Storrow appeared at police headquarters at 7:30 and talked the matter over with Captain George Hall while waiting for Deputy Superintendent Warren, who did not arrive until 9:15.

After making arrangements for further police protection for his workers in Ward 8, he said:

No One on Guard.

"I have found that two policemen are stationed inside each booth in Ward 8 and one man outside. The same conditions prevail all over the city. But when the policeman on the outside at Precinct 3, Ward 8, on Lowell street, went to breakfast, there was no one on guard outside.

"I have asked to have it seen to that a man be stationed outside every voting booth in every precinct of Ward 8 while the polls are open.

"This, of course, applies only to Ward 8 as that is the only place that anybody wearing one of my badges was assaulted. In fact, Cox and myself have been assaulted. This the police have promised to do.

Special officers were sent out to look for the men who struck Smith. Lawyer Frederick H. Chase, as personal counsel to Smith, took an investigation every voting booth in every precinct of Ward 8 while the polls are open.

"Spare no expense in prosecuting this case to a finish."

Louis Cox of No. 124 Walnut street, Chelsea, who was with Smith when he was attacked, told this story:

Story of the Attack.

"Smith and I were standing outside the clear store diagonally across from the polling booth. Smith is the election captain of the Storrow forces in that precinct, south side. We got to and soon clears. He did so. He came out and we were standing there when a man came up who apparently had gotto gloves on. The man smashed Smith in the face twice and ran. Smith fell and then got up and ran after the man. When Smith reached the corner of Lowell and Cottage street some of the men on the corner tripped him and he fell again.

"Smith quickly scrambled to his feet again and we continued our pursuit. At Cottage and Green streets the man disappeared. At this point three men came at me and one of them smashed in my hat. I got away from them with the loss of my hat. I secured an automobile and rushed Smith to the hospital. Then I informed Smith's friends."

Age—From twenty-one to twenty-five years.

Height—5 feet 10 inches.

Weight—About 150 pounds.

Dress—Light overcoat to the knees; hat, uncertain.

Smooth face.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

SHOT IS FIRED AT CANDIDATE

LONDON, Jan. 11.—A pre-election attempt on the life of Morley Samson, Unionist candidate for Pembrokeshire, was reported to-day in a dispatch from Cardiff. A shot was fired on him while he was autoing, but the bullet missed him.

SETS HOUSE AFIRE WARMING THE BED

An overheated bed caused a fire early to-day in the home of Dr. Joseph Kendricken at No. 117 Bowdoin street, Dorchester, that threatened to destroy the entire dwelling but was checked by the timely work of the firemen.

A heated soapstone left in a bed on the third floor set fire to the bedclothes and spread to the walls of the room before it was discovered. An alarm was sounded and when the firemen arrived the entire room was ablaze. The loss is estimated at $100.

Young society girl suffragists visited Martin Lomasney, the Ward 8 leader, at the Hendricks Club on Green street, and he gave them permission to stand in the doorway leading up to the club and to distribute handbills. These were of various colors and read, "Votes for Women."

Miss Anne Gladys and Gwendolyn Holden, daughters of Joshua B. Holden, the lawyer, who lives at the Hotel Somerset, stood in the cold doorway of the club and distributed handbills most of the day. Miss Madeleine Pinkham, daughter of State Senator Pinkham, stood across the street and distributed papers.

"We came down to Ward 8," said Miss Anne Holden, "because we felt we could do more good here than in the Back Bay. All of the men take our handbills and read them. We are delighted at the serious way in which our cause is received down here among the working people."

Miss Pinkham said that she came down town to work against her father's wishes, but she said she felt the "Votes for Women" cause could not be neglected on this important day.

The automobile of Mrs. Wirt Dexter, the wealthy Back Bay suffragist, invaded the ward at noon carrying Mrs. Harriet Dennett and Mrs. Susan W. Fitzgerald, suffragist leaders. The auto moved along the streets slowly, the women distributing "Votes for Women" handbills. "Whom do you want us to vote for?" shouted one man at the women. "We don't care," they replied. "Help us get votes for women."

NEW CITIZENS LAND IN CHILL

The White Star Liner Romanic arrived to-day, one day late, from Mediterranean ports and the Azore Islands. She brought twenty-eight saloon passengers, sixty second cabin and 630 steerage passengers. The steerage passengers were nearly all Italians and Portuguese, and coming from semi-tropical countries the new citizens suffered greatly from the cold. Babies wailed and larger children whimpered as they huddled miserably on the dock. The immigration officers did everything in their power to hurry the inspection, and agents of immigration aid societies hustled around to hurry the travelers to warm trains or other shelter. Captain Hugh P. David said that the Romanic had had fair weather until she left the Azores. From that time the big liner had been buffetted by northwesterly and westerly gales. She ran into a thick snow storm on Sunday which did not leave her until last night. Then it grew bitterly cold.

SCHOOL VOTERS PLAN LEAGUE

The first public meeting of the School Voters' League is to be held to-morrow afternoon at 4:15 in Jacob Sleeper Hall at Boston University. The object of the League is to study the conditions and the administration of the public school; to bring the results to the attention of the public, and to assist in electing suitable people to the school committee.

The originators of the League say there is no organization in existence in Boston that does anything of this kind.

Among the speakers tomorrow afternoon will be Dr. Jane E. Robbins, secretary of the Public School Association of New York; Mrs. Crawford Henderson, Professor Charles Gorilla. The committee on meeting includes Mrs. Mary Morton Kehew, Mrs. Linda Ames Mead, Mrs. Mary Kent Oldham, Miss Mary Boyle O'Reilly, Mrs. Susan W. Fitzgerald and Miss Annie Withington. The meeting is open.

PHI DELTA PHI TO FEAST THURSDAY

Webster Chapter, Phi Delta Phi, will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary Thursday evening with a banquet at the Boston City Club. Dr. Bigelow, dean of Boston University Law School; ex-Dean Bennett and Colonel Joshua Benton will be guests. Homer Albers will preside. Prominent among the banqueters will be Justice Arthur P. Rugg of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court; ex-Governor John L. Bates, Ralph W. Foster, J. J. Mahoney of Lawrence, Henry P. Hedge, Deputy Attorney General of Colorado; George P. Caroll of Brockport, N. Y.; Judges Sanderson and Pet of the Superior Court, Judge M. J. Murray of the Municipal Court; Colonel Charles K. Darling, clerk of the United States Circuit Court; M. J. Sughrue, Charles H. Innes of Boston, Louis S. Cox of Boston and William A. Murphy, secretary to Governor Draper. Nat I. Abbott is chairman of the committee of arrangements.

POSLAM
STICK TO YOUR DOCTOR!
Good or Poor, He's Better Than Any Old Time Medicine.
Hold fast to that which is good, is the advice of Dr. Kobbe, the noted vivisectionist. If you have a doctor and are improving under his care, or if you are taking a treatment that is even checking your disease, stick to the doctor or the treatment and be skeptical.
But, if you have a mangy dog or other animal and want to be shown, and a new discovery like poslam comes along, try it on the dog before trying it on yourself. It acts the same with animals as it does with human beings—infants and adults—healing over night and quickly curing the worst cases of any kind of skin disease, rushing stops at once in any itching skin disease, eczema, rash, scabby, split toes, piles, scaly scalp, crusted humors in infants and the like.
Write to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth Street, New York City, and they will send you, free of charge, by mail in plain wrapper, enough poslam to cure any ordinary case of skin trouble, barber's itch, itching feet, blotches, red noses, inflammations, etc. With this sample alone complexions are cleared over night and wonderful benefited from the face in two days. All of the Rikerdrug stores, drug stores and Hutchon & Dutton's drug dept., as well as all good druggists everywhere, make a specialty of poslam.

RECORD VOTE CAST THROUGHOUT CITY

SCORES OF AUTOS AND CABS HUSTLED STAY-AT-HOMES—STORROW WATCHES WARD 8.

Boston's first municipal election under the new city charter brought out a vote that smashed all records. The vote came out early. In several of the big Democratic strongholds, notably Charlestown, 60 per cent. of the vote was cast by 4 o'clock. Even in the outlying wards voters went to the booths early, contrary to their usual custom.

Everywhere intense interest was manifested in the election. At practically all of the booths there were long lines of men during the first two hours, awaiting their chance to cast their ballots. Police were active, forming lines of voters, and keeping "hangers-on" from congregating around the booths.

Both the Storrow and Fitzgerald forces had hundreds of ward workers on duty. Every voter had to pass the scrutiny of some one acting in the interests of the two chief candidates.

Hundreds of "stay at home" voters were brought to the polls in autos, taxicabs, carriages and hacks. The Storrow managers, who had made a very complete canvass, were especially active in getting them out.

All of the candidates for the City Council worked to help out the vote. Alderman James M. Curley, who headed the ballot, and who was favorably up for Curley-Timilty-Giblin slate, devoted most of his energies throughout the entire day in looking after affairs in Ward 17 and the other wards in the Roxbury-South End district.

Charlestown Voted Early.

A tremendous vote was cast in Charlestown. The number of votes cast in the first hour and a half exceeded 1,500 in Wards 3, 4 and 5, broke all previous records. Hundreds of both Storrow and Fitzgerald voters left at every voting booth, working for their respective candidates, long before the regular hour for the people to the polls.

Three deputies were sworn in by the wardens of voting booths, where the time assigned for duty did not put in an appearance, one in Ward 3, another in Ward 4, and two in Ward 4.

The police were active at all of the various voting booths and did not permit anyone displaying buttons or badges bearing the names or pictures of any of the candidates to loiter around the polls, but there was no serious trouble.

Both Fitzgerald and Storrow had large numbers of workers getting out the vote throughout the Charlestown district. The vote turned out early, despite the fact that it was said taxicabs and carriages could not necessarily get the people to the polls.

Fitzgerald's most earnest workers were Representative James H. Hurley, Arthur Harrington, brother of Mrs. Julia Duff, the candidate for the school committee; James J. Brock, Democratic chairman of Ward 5; ex-Senator Charles S. Sullivan, Representative David H. Keane and ex-Representative Martin P. Higgins.

Ex-Representative J. Frank O'Brien, ex-Councilman Joseph M. Sullivan, ex-Senator James M. Mellen, ex-Assessor Thomas Tisdel Kane and Edward Murphy were among the most active in the interests of Storrow.

Suffer From Cold.

The election officers in Ward 12 suffered severely from the cold, and in a majority of the polling places had to close doors while wearing their overcoats. The voters, too, suffered from numbed fingers, and many of them complained that it was difficult to mark a ballot. In the precinct polling in the basement of the Hugh O'Brien school, the officers lighted lanterns in the effort to raise the temperature a trifle.

Alderman Jim Curley was in charge of the Fitzgerald hustlers, with Councilman Hood and Timothy Connolly as his chief lieutenants. Curley's friends "got out the vote" like although he was doing his best to help another ticket, the Curley slate for city council.

The Storrow forces were captained by Attorney Patrick D. Walsh, assisted by Charles J. Kilroy, Michael Corcoran and Chairman Muggridge of the Republican ward committee.

The vote was heavy, and the results of the first hour's polling brought the party leaders to predict that it would be a record breaker.

In Ward 18 James P. Timilty's friends were "giving him the ballot" in the precinct to take all the names on the Curley-Timilty slate. The vote was unusually heavy early in the day, and the indications that the total would exceed that cast in any other election. In this ward there was manifest activity on the part of the supporters of the School Board candidates.

Law-Breakers Ejected.

Policemen elected several men from polling places in Wards 3 and 4 to-day. The men were distributing Fitzgerald literature and soliciting votes in the polling places in violation of the law. The men were thrown out of the polling place in Precinct 1, Ward 3, in the Copley School on Bartlett street, and from the polling place of Precinct 2, Ward 4, at Bartlett and Sullivan streets.

In Precinct 2, Ward 4, at Winthrop square, Patrick Lynch, an Italian, almost blind, came to cast his vote. He was helped to mark his ballot by a voting clerk.

The vote in wards 1 and 2, East Boston, was the heaviest ever known. Records were smashed in every precinct in the district.

Turn Out to Aid Goodwin.

East Boston rallied to the support of Frank A. Goodwin, the lone candidate for the City Council.

William F. McClellan, former president of the Democratic City Committee, looked after the Fitzgerald interest in ward 1. Ex-Police John F. Sullivan, the ousted Democratic Ward Committee, did active work in the ex-mayor's cause in ward 2.

Storrow supporters looked after their candidate's interests in both wards, but they were not as active as the Fitzgerald men. Both forces had a plentiful supply of automobiles and carriages.

It was said that many of Fitzgerald's men supported Mayor Hibbard two years ago voted for Storrow and Goodwin.

In every precinct in both wards where the polling booth is off the main street, banners and fences were plastered with signs and posters directing voters how to get to the right booth. At East Boston Heights a long line of stickers lustily told the voter how to get to the booth in the Paul Gore school.

Thomas J. Giblin exhibited things at the booth in precinct 1 of Ward 1 when he went there to vote shortly after 6 o'clock. "Got on hand early," Tom told the warden, because I wanted the honor of being the first man to vote in this precinct."

Giblin Not the First.

"I guess you can't have the honor," replied the warden. "A man has just voted."

Seven hundred and two votes were polled in Ward 2 out of the 1,000 registered, four hours after the polls opened. James Donovan made the rounds of the ward workers with Fitzgerald forces, while D. Donovan looked after the Storrow interests. Joseph McCarthy, chairman of Ward Ward 7 Democratic committee, got out the Fitzgerald vote. Miss Ella Veak, of No. 81 Tyler street was the first woman to cast a ballot for school committee, voting in precinct 6 of Ward 7.

Big votes were polled in Ward 11. Two hundred more votes were cast at 10 o'clock than last year at the same time. In precinct 1 there were 266, or 50 more than last year; in precinct 2, 266, which is 60 more than last year; in precinct 3, 200, 160 more than last year, and in precinct 4, 300, a gain of 50; in precinct 5, 200, about the same as the last election. There was an increase respectively of 15 and 25 votes in precincts 8 and 7.

Fight Hard For Slates.

One-half of the total vote in Ward 18 where Alderman James T. Timilty lives, was cast in the first three hours. The Fitzgerald men were very confident. "Fitz" gerald will carry the ward by a big vote," said Timilty.

Both Walsh and Councilman George Kenney were out early, working hard for Storrow. Kenney distributed a small picture button of Fitzgerald on a white ribbon. The inscription read: "Sound Jim James," and Keliher, "Apollo Jack." Under the picture of Fitzgerald was "The Good Two Twins," and below all "The Tenth Ward Twins." They, too, are pulling hard for Fitzgerald and saying, "Fight Under all the Blue Flags." Keep with Nagle and Kenney."

The largest number of political workers ever gathered into Ward 8 worked there to-day. In all of the ward rooms and at the polling booths they discussed about taking to the voters, checking off and keeping a hustling voters to the polls in carriages and automobiles. The entire ward was in effort to continue the number about the poll ing places to the legal limit.

Martin Lomasney conducted his campaign from his desk in the Republican Club. Workers poured in upon him all day and received their orders and got one quickly and with a bidding. The leader himself was busy at the telephone now getting out the vote. He telephoned to the City Hospital to two sick men there, and, though they were not able to walk, they came down to the ward in an automobile to vote.

"Sweep for Fitzgerald."

Men came rushing in to the club with the inquiry: "How's it going, Martin?"

"Fitzgerald is sweeping the city," replied the leader, and then he went back to the phone to get out some more early votes.

Among the men who came to see the leader early in the day was Willard Ladd, proprietor of the Berkeley House, whom the Election Commissioners tried to get before them to question him about registering from his hotel. Ladd came in an automobile.

Secretary Bottomley of the Good Government Association was early in Ward 8, and the association forces were out in force at the polls.

"We are fighting for a fair election," he said. "We are challenging every voter of whom we are suspicious. There are 1,000 men in Ward 8 and every other ward in the city, too. We hope to elect our entire municipal ticket."

Challenge, But No Arrest.

Storrow checkers challenged a voter at the booth in Precinct 1, Ward 8, at 7:30 o'clock, claiming he was illegally registered. They demanded that the man in question be arrested, but the officers refused to do so. The applicant for a ballot was sworn in and cast the vote without having cast his vote.

Mr. Storrow kept a sharp watch on the Ward 8 vote. He visited precinct 1 in his automobile at 7:15. The clock on his stand near the entrance to the voting booth and was quickly surrounded by his friends and a fringe of Lomasney and Fitzgerald men.

"Have you seen Mr. Lomasney?" Mr. Storrow was asked.

"No, I understand that he has not voted yet. Neither have I."

Storrow Liked Weather.

"What do you think of the situation to-day?"

"It is good voting weather," replied Mr. Storrow with a smile.

More than half the vote of Wards 22 and 23 was cast in 90 o'clock. Storrow supporters were enthusiastic. They claimed Storrow would carry Ward 22 by 600 to 500. They figure that the Storrow vote would reach 2,200, that Fitzgerald would

A Simple Cure for Hair Troubles.

There are no better things known for treating the hair and scalp than Refined Soap, White of Eggs, Glycerin, Cochin Cocoanut Oil and Salicylic Acid. The soap cleanses the scalp of dirt. The Cocoanut Oil helps to raise a lather and gives a beautiful gloss to the hair. The White of Eggs loosens dandruff and scales on the scalp. Glycerin soothes and heals because of its emollient properties. Salicylic Acid is a destroyer of germs and bacteria and is an antiseptic that prevents disgreeable odors. Birt's Head Wash is made of all the above ingredients. It is a new scientific preparation that keeps the pores of the scalp open so the hair follicles can secure proper nourishment.

MISERY FROM A BAD STOMACH AND DYSPEPSIA WILL VANISH.

Take your sour, out-of-order stomach—or maybe you call it indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one Diapepsin Tablet and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

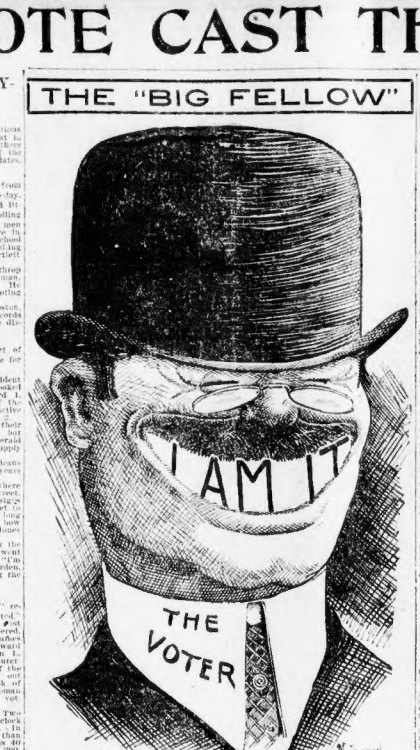
The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food sowring; the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle, and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

"THE BIG FELLOW"



POLICE PROBE THE ATTACK ON J. J. STORROW

An attack made by 200 men and boys on Mayor-elect James J. Storrow and his party last night in South Boston is being investigated by the police to-day. Lumps of ice were hurled at the autos and several attempts made to hit Mr. Storrow with long torch sticks and red fire torches.

Mr. Storrow was struck across the right arm, which he had raised to protect his head from a swing of a stick. Several others in the party were also struck with sticks and ice.

The attack was the only thing that marred Mr. Storrow's tour of the city. He spoke at thirty-six rallies, being received by big crowds and being greeted with great enthusiasm.

Mr. Storrow and his followers, in three cars, were bound for the city proper, after having addressed a big rally at No. 787 Broadway, when the attack was made on the party.

As the cars sped down Broadway Mr. Storrow noticed that a Fitzgerald torchlight parade was forming at the corner of Broadway and Dorchester avenue. Falling to recognize the men going through the lines of cheering Fitzgerald adherents, he directed Frank Page, his chauffeur, to turn down B street and along Fourth street.

Rush for Storrow's Car.

Following directions the chauffeur of the Storrow car sped along Fourth street towards the Dorchester bridge, this being the most direct route at that time to be had from the Southboston ward, in which Mr. Storrow spoke later.

At the corner of Dorchester avenue and Fourth street a crowd of men and boys numbering about 500, and the majority of them carrying torchlights and red fire, was encountered.

Chauffeur Page slowed down his car so as to make his way slowly through the crowd, but as the crowd recognized the white Storrow flags on the car—

Instantly there was a rush for Mr. Storrow's car, and for the two other cars that contained Mr. Storrow's followers and the newspaper men.

These formed the first machine swung at the occupants with their torchlight sticks. Those who had no sticks picked up lumps of ice and hurled them at the Storrow party.

One young man, armed with a torchlight stick, struck at Mr. Storrow. Mr. Storrow, however, had his swinging back his arm, lifted his right arm to protect his head. The stick hit Mr. Storrow's arm, but he escaped unscathed.

Norton Hit on Head.

Robert L. Norton, Mr. Storrow's press agent, and Herman Hormel, secretary of the Republican City Committee, who were sitting in the back seat, were also struck by the former on the head and the latter on the nose.

Several reporters who were in the second auto were hit by red fire bombs and torchlights, but the rear car were D. G. Wing, president of the First National Bank, and Robert Herrick, another well-known reporter, but although the car in which they were riding was swinging back by the arm, lifted his right arm to protect his head. The stick hit Mr. Storrow's arm, but he escaped unscathed.

AGED VOTER CARRIED FROM BED TO POLLS

Carried from his home in the arms of two of his neighbors, James Carney, seventy-five years of age, who has been confined to his bed for a year, was taken into the polling booth directly across from his home on A street. Fifteen years ago, at 17, today, to cast what he termed would be his last vote. Carney, however, decided to do his duty for several days. Early in the morning he called the police and told them that he wanted to vote. She told him that he was too feeble, but he insisted, and she secured the services of two men who, picking Carney up and placing him in their arms, carried him to the polling booth across the street. He voted for Fitzgerald.

STORROW TAXICAB CATCHES FIRE

A Storrow taxicab caught fire in Washington street, Brighton, in front of Precinct 7, early to-day, and two men in the machine put it out before any damage was done. The automobile, which was the property of Fitzgerald leaders, went to the rescue and got his clothing scorched. His face was blackened and burned by the flames. He hurried to the booth and cast his vote for Fitzgerald in his gallantry. Precinct 7 is the banner Fitzgerald district and the election record for the same hour at 11 o'clock, and from the other Fitzgerald precincts came the tale of a vote which broke all records.

CAME FROM MAINE TO SWELL WARD 18 VOTE

They came from afar to vote for Fitzgerald in Ward 18. William O'Brien, working in Ratskills Spring, Me., showed up in Precinct 4 in the afternoon, having come all the way from Pittsfield to cast his vote for Fitzgerald.

AGED WOMAN CALLS RUSSELL CLAIMANT 'SON'

Mrs. Sarah Rosenn came face to face today with the claimant to hold the Daniel Russell fortune of $500,000, the man whom she claims is her son, Calvin Delbert Rosenn. This is the third time the gray-haired woman of seventy has faced the man who claims to be Daniel Blake Russell since the trial opened on September 20 in the Middlesex County Probate Court.

"Look at the claimant," said Lawyer Proctor for William C. Russell of Melrose, who is fighting the claimant. Mrs. Rosenn, who is their aunt, asked the lawyer.

"That man is her son," said the woman, "James Delbert Rosenn. He is not Daniel Blake Russell. He is not dead, as they say, but his mother does not deny him. I know my son and I know him."

Claimant Smiles.

During this dramatic scene the man who claims to be Daniel Blake Russell sat in his chair facing the woman, smiled and was apparently only amused at the verbal battle between.

Mrs. Rosenn's second visit to the stage stamp which had been cancelled from all of the letters, envelopes, etc., to the number, which had been introduced to prove Daniel Blake Russell an impostor.

"I cut those stamps off myself," said Mrs. Rosenn, and gave them to two of my grandchildren."

Attorney Simpson, for Daniel Blake Russell, has contended that the removal of these stamps is conclusive evidence that all of these letters as alleged by those supporting the claimant.

When Mr. Proctor referred to the claimant as "Jim," Mr. Simpson objected, saying that he had no right to call the claimant that as he had not been proved to be "Jim Rosenn." Judge Sanderson sustained the objection and said the man may be called "this man" or "the claimant."

Sent Lock of Hair.

"About three years ago," testified Mrs. Rosenn, "I sent to my son a lock of my hair. It was wrapped up in a piece of paper, and I wrote on the paper, 'Your mother.'"

Mrs. Rosenn was shown a lock of hair which the claimant has said he received from his mother. Mrs. Daniel Russell of Melrose, but before her death.

"That is the lock of hair I sent to my son," said Mrs. Rosenn. "He sent a lock of hair to me, too. This is the lock of his hair. I sent him my picture in an envelope and taking out the lock of hair, which she showed to the court.

MRS. MORSE WILL LIVE IN ATLANTA

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Mrs. Charles W. Morse, wife of the banker in prison at Atlanta, Ga., is back in the city after paying her husband a visit. She is living at present in the house her husband once owned at No. 778 Fifth avenue, but she is only going to remain there a day or two. "My home is now in Atlanta, and as I can get, said Mrs. Morse today, "and I will be in Atlanta as long as circumstances require it. I could not leave because I have some business to attend to that requires my personal attention."

BOSTON TAKEN IN BIG WHITE SLAVE GRABNET

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The investigation of the white slave traffic by the grand jury in this city has been extended to Philadelphia, and today Assistant District Attorney Reynolds returned from that city with a mass of evidence showing that young women have been shipped from resorts in Manhattan and Brooklyn to Philadelphia, and shipped back like so many cattle headed for the best paying market. The same inquiry will extend to Boston, Chicago, Pittsburg and Buffalo.

The Philadelphia end of the inquiry was the result of evidence discovered here that there were innumerable houses both in Manhattan and in Brooklyn that were being operated solely for the purpose of luring young girls into the hands of the white slave dealers. At these places they were given drink, kept away from home over night and then the toboggan to slavery started for them.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., foreman of the grand jury investigating the slave traffic, has had a horde of private detectives, and a great mass of evidence is being gathered as a result. It is understood that he is paying for the services of these men out of his own pocket. When the grand jury met today George Kibbe Turner, the magazine writer, was called to testify. He had a mass of facts to present.

BAD FLUE CAUSES LOSS OF HOUSE

The two-and-a-half story wooden dwelling, No. 162 Grove street, Auburndale, owned by Henry L. Jewett of Boston and occupied by Paul B. Moulton and family, was destroyed by fire with most of its contents, entailing a damage of $5,000 on the building and an equal sum on the furniture.

The fire started from a defective flue on the second floor, and crept through the partitions.

HADLOCK'S ANNUAL BILL HITS SCIENCE'

John C. Hadlock of the Boston Ch'Cant boys, under indictment for alleged fraud in his nomination papers for Mayor, to-day filed in the Supreme Court his annual petition for legislation "to regulate irregular practitioners." The bill is aimed at Christian Science and other healers. It was filed in each Representative Courtney's office of Ward 11. Hadlock's local representative, it was made known on the petition by request, "to signify that he is not in sympathy with its provisions. In previous years the Hadlock petition has been given "leave to withdraw."

ELKINS PUTS IN RAILROAD BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Senator Elkins of West Virginia today introduced in the Senate the administration railroad bill, which is a counterpart of the Townsend bill introduced in the House yesterday. Chairman of Iowa, offered a resolution, which was adopted, calling on the Department of Commerce and Labor for information concerning foreign and domestic retirement plans for civilian government employes.

BLACK SKINS HIDE FEVER.

RIVERSIDE, Conn., Jan. 11.—That the deadly fever epidemic has spread in the village of Mianus is due, Dr. A. W. Klein, health officer of this town, states, to the fact that negroes have black skins.

CUTS PRAYING WIFE'S THROAT; TRIES SUICIDE

FALL RIVER, Jan. 11.—While she was kneeling in prayer beside a couch Mrs. Elizabeth Tremble's throat was cut early today by her husband, Lawrence Tremble, at No. 180 Central street. Tremble then drew the knife across his own throat. Both are at the City Hospital and will recover.

According to Mrs. Tremble her husband has been acting strangely during the past two weeks. Today both arose and had breakfast. Dinners were put up, for both work, the husband as a laborer and the wife in the mill, and then Mrs. Tremble knelt beside the couch to pray.

Tremble suddenly seized a bread knife from the table, grabbed his wife by the hair, pulled her head back and drew the knife across her throat, cutting a deep gash. Then he tried to commit suicide by cutting his own throat.

LAST SERVICES FOR SATOLLI

ROME, Jan. 11.—Attended all the cardinals and officials of the Vatican, the funeral of Cardinal Satolli former Papal delegate to the United States, was held today. The services were in the church of St. John in Laterna, where usually only the funerals of Popes and French Kings were conducted.

Many Americans attended, including the Princess Rospighosi, formerly Miss Hold of New Orleans, and Mrs. A. L. Ashman of New York. Mr. Kennedy, the rector of the American College, was present, and with him was the college choir. Cardinal Vannutelli pronounced the absolution.

COMMISSION URGES OPEN DEER SEASON

An open season on deer is recommended by the fish and game commission in its annual report to the Legislature. The reason is the annually increasing number of damage claims paid by the State for injury to crops by deer.

The framers declare that the money does not begin to cover the actual damage sustained, and that in a few weeks with a gun they could accomplish more toward saving the crops than a dozen reimbursement laws.

The Massachusetts Fish and Game Protective Associations have also urged the enactment of a law. Chairman Field of the board favors making the open period very brief.

FREIGHT HANDLERS INSTALL OFFICERS

Upward of $1,400 in sick benefits alone was paid out of the local treasury of the Boston local of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Freight Handlers' Union, Knights of Labor 6278, during the year just ended, as shown by the report of its officers at the last meeting of the union in St. Olaf's Hall, South Boston. Patrick Croke, recently re-elected master workman, took charge with the remaining officers elect, was installed. Delegates selected to represent the union at the District Assembly K. of L. 30—the original—installed were: Patrick Croke, M. J. Kelly, Daniel Daley, Martin Fogerty and Michael Croke.

PASTOR ARRESTED ON LIBEL CHARGE

The Rev. E. Eben Bayliss, a Methodist evangelist who took a prominent part in the city election in Somerville, was arraigned today before Judge Bond in the Middlesex County Criminal Court on a secret indictment, charging him with criminal libel. He was arrested last night in Portland, Me., by State Detective Byrnes and Lieutenant Carter of the Somerville police department. Bayliss pleaded not guilty and was held in $1,000, which was furnished by E. C. Drouet of Somerville. The indictment grows out of charges made against city officials of Somerville that they were guilty of taking graft from liquor dealers.

ROCKEFELLER'S OIL HAMPERS SKY RACERS

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 11.—The American aviators who are participating in the international aerial contests here sent up a general wail to-day against John D. Rockefeller's chief wealth-producer—gasoline. Glenn H. Curtiss declared he had been prevented from "extending himself" owing to the poor quality of the fluid furnished.

Charles F. Willard also laid his inability to negotiate the circuit of the course to poor gasoline, which heated his engine to such a point that he was compelled to descend, and Charles K. Hamilton after a flight of only a short distance uttered a similar complaint. It seems the great French "bird man," Louis Paulhan, stole a march on the Americans and incidentally pulled down the first prize, $500, when he previously had had the quality of his gasoline and bought the best the market afforded before he attempted any flights.

M. Paulhan, the daring little French aviator, who easily won the first honors, declares that he intends to break the height, distance and duration records during the present meet and that he will make Prince proud of him. "It is not so much the prizes as the sport of the thing that attracted me to Los Angeles," he said. "I try and forget everything else when I watched Curtiss in his great speed. I could not but admire him. He is a true sportsman. I know Curtiss will do his best. He will eclipse himself in this meet and his name will also be cabled to Paris and all over the world.

"The people of Paris, and, in fact, all Europe, are watching this competition with great interest. Madame Paulhan has come up with me several times, and will go up again some time this week. She just loves to fly. I may take another lady with me in addition, or perhaps a gentleman, but I cannot take more than two, including myself."

Society turned out again to-day by the thousands. The new thrill has so fascinated some of the society belles that more than a score have begged M. Paulhan to take them for a spin in the sky, and he says he will accommodate a few of them.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

FUGITIVE NAVAL PRISONER CAUGHT

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Jan. 11.—Carl Nicholson is back in the naval prison here after being at liberty since October, when he made a daring escape and sought to hide from capture by enlisting in the United States Army at Fort Ethan Allen in Vermont. He was brought here by Sheriff Revilla of Burlington, Vt., but not until he had made a desperate resistance to arrest at the army post.

BOSTON STAGE FAVORITE GETS HER DIVORCE

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 11.—Christie McDonald Jefferson, the actress, has been granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from her husband, William Winter Jefferson, son of the late Joseph Jefferson.

Miss McDonald had made her own place as a comic opera star long before she was married to Mr. Jefferson. They were married on May 12, 1901 at the Jefferson summer place "The Crow's Nest," Buzzard's Bay. They went to Europe on a honeymoon. Mrs. Jefferson leaving the stage.

It did not take them long to find mutual incompatibility or temperament they parted. She went back to the stage. It is said that the cause of their separation was her insistence on living with relatives and he wanted his own menage.

She began her suit last November. Miss McDonald was a Boston girl. Her start on the stage was interesting. As a schoolgirl in 1894 she visited the Boston Theatre, where Francis Wilson and Marie Jansen were playing in "The Merry Monarch."

The play made such an impression on her that when she went home she talked of it for weeks, and two years later she joined Mr. Wilson's company, playing Lolette in "Erminie."

Not long afterward she had the satisfaction of playing the part which had so impressed her when she heard Miss Jansen sing it in a revival of "The Merry Monarch."

From that time until she became Mrs. Jefferson her successes followed almost continuously.

Miss McDonald was last seen in Boston a year ago at the Park Theatre with Frank Daniels in "Hook of Holland."

FOUR IN FAMILY FACE ARSON TRIAL

In default of bail bonds aggregating $18,000, Rose Freedman, forty-one years old, of No. 160 Longwood avenue, Brookline, and her husband, Simon Freedman, of No. 65 Bowen street, Roxbury, furnished a bail bond of $5,000 and was released pending trial on the charge of being an accessory to the firing of the house in which they live.

Two other members of the same family, Morris Freedman and Mrs. Mary Minsky, are also in jail under bail of $8,000 each as accessories in the burning of the building at No. 855 Columbus avenue, one of the offenses alleged against Rose Freedman.

HANDS AND FEET SEEMED DEAD

Marvelous Recovery from Partial Paralysis Related by a New York Man.

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in severe nervous disease is convincingly shown by the case of Mr. Olave E. Dallimore, of No. 38 Nassau street, New York City, who says:

"A few years ago I was afflicted with paralysis and was in bed for nearly two months. I first felt the symptoms of the disease, when I experienced difficulty in going upstairs through my legs failing to support me. I consulted a physician who said I had every symptom of locomotor ataxia but as the disease developed he pronounced it Landry's paralysis and advised me to start for my home. I gave up my work and went to London, Ontario, Canada. A well known physician was called in attendance but I rapidly grew worse. A week later several physicians held a consultation on my case and told me that I was at death's door and had but from three to six days to live. Yet I lingered on, by this time, completely paralyzed. My hands and feet were dead. I could hardly whisper my wants and could swallow only liquids. The misery of my life was beyond description and I would have welcomed death.

"A clergyman, who visited me, as he supposed, in my last hours, told me of the marvelous cures of paralysis by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I started to take the pills. This was about a month after my sickness began and in a comparatively short time I felt an improvement in my condition. There began to be a warm, tingling sensation in my limbs, which had been entirely dead, and I could move my hands and feet a little. The improvement continued and in a few weeks I was taken out of bed for a drive and drove the horse myself. After awhile I was able to walk upstairs alone and made a visit to Niagara Falls. Slowly but surely I regained my health and strength and left London for New York City to begin my work again. In eight months I was cured of paralysis.

"To this day I attribute my recovery to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and it gives me great pleasure to have a statement of my case published."

Our booklet, "Diseases of the Nervous System", will be sent free upon request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

GOULD CALLED BESSIE DE VOIE HIS 'DEAR EYES'

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Within a day or two it is expected that Frank J. Gould's attorneys will file his answer to the suit of Bessie De Vole, the actress and dancer, for $250,000 damages for alleged fraud and misrepresentation in connection with a promise of marriage said to have been made to her by him.

Another batch of letters written by Gould contain many expressions of affection, which the actress is said to have found very comforting in the absence of the writer himself. In one he is described giving up seeing the "kids" to be with her. The letter explains Gould's regret that he could not telephone to Miss De Vole in London:

"My Own Dear Bessie."

234 Fifth avenue, Sunday.

My Own Dear Bessie: Jap and I have just finished playing squash, so as he is here yet, can't phone you. The exercise was fine, and the bath after great. The kids were here and had to disentage one of the curses this morning. Have now and running on the door and switching electricity and shopping here. Miss von Bessie on much and when you were here. Hope your cold is better there is nothing new to write, so but I send you all my love and kisses. Your FRANK.

May 2, 1909.

On Saturday, September 12, 1908, in a letter from the Union club at St. John, New Brunswick, Gould thus addressed Miss Bessie to "please be good and write":

Chides Her for Not Writing.

Dearest—We left Boston yesterday morning at 8 o'clock and arrived here at 7 this morning. Thursday afternoon it blew a gale and was so rough we would not risk going out. As it was there was quite a set running Friday. We have made all arrangements for the shooting and leave for the woods on Monday at 7 in the morning. Just Mr. Taylor come with me. By the way, he says he received the note from your mother. I wrote you a letter and addressed it "The Derry." I hope you received it.

The first thing I did on landing was to go to the Western Union office and inquire if there were any letters, but there were none. I hope he good. Bessie, and write me, for it means a lunch to me to know that you think of me. How I wish you were here—though, perhaps you would not enjoy it—though for me it would be what I long for. I do not mean just here, but all the time and everywhere. I feel so very much happier than I did since I saw you and know how you feel. You are in my thoughts, dear.

There was a note in Boston waiting the yacht, and he took one of my telegrams from the clubhouse on the dock. Then asked Mr. Taylor, superintendent of the Western Union here, to hold any letters and not to deliver them to anybody. Dearest, I send you all my love and I long to do everything to hold yours. With regards to your mother, yours entirely,

FRANK.

QUINCY REFUSES TO VOTE TAX LOAN

Passage of the customary $500,000 loan order in anticipation of taxes was refused by the Quincy City Council after a warm debate. The Finance Committee reported in favor, but Councilman Richards of the committee against it. Richards said he wanted to know the financial condition of the city. Councilman Bacon offered an amendment to the city solicitor governing newspapers, which will not print any but public notices from loaning papers, and which forbids them from crying their papers in an offensive or loud manner.

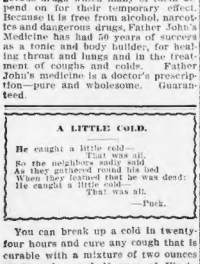
BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU TAKE FOR COLDS



The danger in using patent medicines is from the stimulants and dangerous drugs which many of them depend on for their temporary effect. Because it is free from alcohol, narcotics and dangerous drugs, Father John's Medicine has had 50 years of success as a tonic and body builder, for healing throat and lungs and in the treatment of coughs and colds. Father John's medicine is a doctor's prescription—pure and wholesome. Guaranteed.

A LITTLE COLD.

He caught a little cold—
That was all.
So the neighbors said and shook
As they gathered round his bed
Where they learned that he was dead:
He caught a little cold—
That was all.

—Puck.

You can break up a cold in twenty-four hours and cure any cough that is curable with a mixture of two ounces of Glycerine, a half-ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure and eight ounces of pure Whisky. Take a teaspoonful every four hours. For throat and bronchial trouble add to soothe and heal irritations of the mucous surface this formula is highly recommended by the Leach Chemical Co., of Cincinnati, who prepare the genuine Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure for dispensing through druggists.

Frank Gould's Loving Terms to Miss De Voie

In the thirty-eight letters from Frank J. Gould to Bessie De Vole given out by the dancer, the endearing terms tally up as follows:

"Dearest," 28 times.
"My own Dear Bessie," 18 times.
"My own Bessie," once.
Your own Frank," 28 times.
"Love and Kisses," 37 times.
"Dear Eyes," once.
"Kisses on your lovely dark brown and big eyes" twice.
"Sweetheart," 13 times.
"Adoring Frank," once.
"Kitty Grey," once.
"Dee Frank," once.

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight, London Time

Empress Eugenie's "Memoirs" Forgeries.

PARIS—Despite the persistent reports in circulation concerning the alleged memoirs of Empress Eugenie, for the publication of which it is said negotiations are going on in Europe and America, Signor Franceschini Pieri, secretary of the Empress, declares there is no foundation for such rumors. The Empress has not written any memoirs and has no intention of writing any. I am well aware of the reports you mention, but they are absolutely false." A well known publishing firm in New York has been credited with the intention of issuing, on the death of the Empress, a work purporting to be her memoirs. I wrote to the firm in question in October intimating that any book of memoirs attributed to the Empress could be nothing but rank forgery. To the letter I received no answer.

Eight Lady Pagets.

LONDON—It is not often that one comes across a little home by mother and daughter, both of recent creation. There is, however, a notable instance in the case of Lady Paget, who for so many years was better known as Mrs. Arthur Paget, and her daughter, who married her cousin, the Ralph Paget, but two years ago, now, by her husband being the recipient of birth honors, they are both Lady Paget, and so Lady Paget. This now makes the eighth "Lady Paget," without any distinctive pseudonym when not mentioned in conjunction with the husband's name, and the third in the Anglesey branch of the Paget family.

Americans' Jewelry Found.

LONDON—In the Marylebone police court, George Wentworth, Frederick Wentworth and Bertie Smoker, respectively porter, butler and pantryman at a boarding house in Leinster Gardens, Bayswater, were charged with stealing a diamond and pearl tiara, two diamond corsiplins and a neck, ace valued at $2000 from J. Francis White of the Riverside, New York, who with his wife was a guest at the house. The ring and pins were found on George Wentworth.

Protest from Porto Rico.

SAN JUAN, P. R.—The Bar Association of the United States District Court has sent a cable dispatch to Secretary of War Dickinson, who is now in Havana, protesting against the contemplated appointment of Frank Feuille to succeed Judge R. S. Bodey, whose term expires in June. Feuille was formerly Attorney-General of Porto Rico. It was said today that there will be peace and cooperation in the Legislature. Governor Colton's message was sent in to-day.

Won't Introduce Leishman.

ROME—Owing to the abolition of an old court custom, John G. A. Leishman, the new American Ambassador to Italy, will not be formally presented to the Royal nobility by the court master of ceremonies. The custom in olden days was for ambassadors accredited to the Quirinal, after their presentation to the King and an audience with the Queen, to give an official reception to which only persons on the court lists were invited.

$500,000 for Immortals.

CONSTANTINOPLE—A Turkish millionaire has donated $500,000 for the creation of a Turkish Academy on similar lines to the Academy of France. The academy will be limited to distinguished men of Arabian, Turkish and Persian nationality.

$4,000,000 for Princesses.

BRUSSELS—The inheritance of the Princesses Louise, Stephanie and Clementine, the daughters of the late King Leopold, is now estimated at about $4,000,000. It is announced that Princess Louise has paid off her creditors in part.

Shanghai Shaken by Quake.

SHANGHAI—A severe earthquake shock was felt here on Saturday night. It was also generally noticed along the lower Yangtse Kiang. The damage was not great.

MALDEN BOY STARTS STRING OF ROBBERIES

One small boy, aged eleven years, has the Malden police guessing. They are after him, but thus far he has eluded them. Sunday morning a number of residents of the Faulkner district reported to the police that their door keys disappeared after a neighbor visited the house. Last night the variety store of Myer Cohen, at No. 45 Bryant street, was robbed of merchandise valued at $40. The door key which was lost Sunday had returned. The same was true at the store of Benjamin Greenlaw at No. 31 Warren avenue. Mrs. P. J. McGrare of No. 4 Faulkner street and Mrs. A. C. Champley of No. 8 Faulkner street, Malden, are shy on door keys and have been advised to barricade the doors.

HOOSIERS PAY HONOR TO LEW WALLACE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The statue of General Lew Wallace, the contribution of the State of Indiana to the collection in Statuary Hall in the Capitol, was unveiled to-day. Arrangements for the ceremonies were completed by Captain John F. Megrow, president of the Statue Commission.

GAYNOR OPENS DRIVEWAY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Mayor Gaynor has directed Park Commissioner Stover to allow the Fifth Avenue Stage Company to resume the operation of motor stages in Riverside drive, from Seventy-second street to the viaduct across the Manhattan valley.

MINISTER OF SPAIN QUITS IN HIGH ANGER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The Marquis de Villalobar, Spanish Minister here, has been recalled. Word to this effect was received in Washington to-day. The action follows his complaint to Madrid that he had been insulted at a White House reception, where ministers were divided from ambassadors by a velvet rope. The Marquis will be sent to represent his country at Lisbon.

The incident at the White House occurred last Tuesday. The minister left in a dudgeon after he had been told by an attache that he could not pass into the space reserved for the highest diplomatic officers. He protested at the first order and the case was carried to the official of the reception, and finally to President Taft himself. The latter refused to allow any infringement of the time-adopted rule. Other ministers felt as keen anger, it is said, but refrained from resenting it with the openness that marked Villalobar's action.

The plan of coping of the different grades of representation was adopted for the first time at the reception Tuesday.

The Blue Room was divided and the ambassadors were carefully herded from the ministers.

It was after he had paid his respects to the President that the Spanish minister attempted to pass into the diplomatic enclosure. Then came the dispute and Villalobar's departure in a dudgeon. It is the President had given permission for the public reception, which was attended with when he wished to confer.

Indignation among the other Ministers is reported to be general, and whether Villalobar's protest will be followed by similar notes was a question of absorbing interest in Washington today.

THIEF LEAPS FROM TRAIN

NEWBURYPORT, Jan. 11.—A train carrying people from this city to Amesbury for the Bishop Brady mass and burial was the scene of a sensational robbery and escape to-day.

The train was traveling twenty-five miles an hour when a pickpocket openly rifled a man in one of the cars of $75 contained in a wallet. The cry of "thief" was raised by those who saw the act and the desperado dashed down the aisle of the car toward the door. Efforts were made by the excited passengers to hold him, but he rushed his way through, and before he could be overtaken succeeded in getting to the door locked from the inside.

The police of Amesbury, Salisbury and Newburyport are out in force, searching the bridges across the Merrimac River are guarded.

He is five feet ten inches tall, wore a gray sweater and a slouched hat.

HELD FOR BREAKS IN LOCKERS AT TUFTS

For riding the contents of lockers at the Potts college dormitories, Rudolf B. Prescott, who says that he comes from North Conway, New Hampshire, but has no permanent home, was held in $1,000 bonds for the grand jury by Judge Madden in Malden this morning. Prescott is accused of robbing the locker of Oswald Kemerson, a third-year student, of clothing valued at $75. He failed to furnish bonds and was committed.

STRIKE CONFERENCE WITH SWITCHMEN

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 11.—Railroad officials went into conference with a delegation of switchmen, boiler makers, machinists and freight handlers to-day. The session was secret. General activity at the headquarters indicates that action of some kind is pending, but neither side has made an announcement.

GLOUCESTER DIVORCEES ARE WED IN SECRET

GLOUCESTER, Jan. 11.—Gloucester was given a genuine surprise to-day when it became known that Oscar P. Young, the well-known Gloucester fish merchant, who recently chased across the continent to recover his nine-year-old boy from his divorced wife, had married Mrs. Annie Winslow of Dover, N. H. The wedding took place here on Dec. 14 and was performed by the Rev. Charles H. Williams of the Congregational church.

Young and his wife were married about two years ago. Mrs. Winslow, who lives in Dover, N. H., was married September 9 to a divorce from her husband, Albert Winslow, in her suit Mrs. Winslow named Mrs. Young.

Several months ago Mrs. Young vanished from this city, taking her small son with her. The Essex county Probate Court of Salem had granted the father the custody of the child. After court to search Mrs. Young was located by detectives in Los Angeles. It was said that Albert Winslow was in that city.

Mr. Young went West and his son and was arrested after a sensational scene with his former wife. Finally they agreed to come East together and the child. Under an arrangement under which each was to have the boy for certain times in the year was made. Mrs. Young came to live with her mother, Mrs. Flora Gillis, in Magnolia, only to speak of the separation with whom he wished to confer.

Indignation among the other Ministers is reported to be general, and whether Villalobar's protest will be followed by similar notes was a question of absorbing interest in Washington today.

POULTRY SHOW HAS RARE BIRDS

That the choice of city officers is not the only election taking place in Boston is evidenced by the interest taken in the fourteenth annual exhibition of the Boston Poultry Association, which opened to-day for five days in the Mechanics building on Huntington avenue.

Although the official returns are not announced, the "ballot" has been taken and the judges have reported the findings to the officials of the "election." The result will be made this evening.

While there are many birds at this show that are of great value, considered by breeders and fanciers, those persons direct in touch with the fancy say that the most important prizes are not likely to take. The Cochin and Partridge Cochin classes, however, contain many prizewinners being seen in the pens assigned to these fowls. The champion of the former, which is owned by Dodge of Attleboro, is valued at $200 and $500 are spoken of as among the most valuable birds in the show, being Partridge Wyandottes and White Wyandottes. The opening crowd attended the opening.

DIES FROM BURNS TEN YEARS AFTER

After suffering for ten years from burns, to-day which a doctor grafted 500 pieces of skin from different persons on his body, and on the 500th piece which was taken from his own body, Joseph Brooks died at his home. CONVICTS ESCAPE OVER HUDSON ICE

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 11.—Eluding the guards, two convicts in Sing Sing escaped to-day by jumping the east wall and making their way by means of the ice along the Hudson River to the opposite shore. The police of all the cities along the Hudson have been asked to watch for them. The men who escaped are Francis Frank and Fredrick A. Kenyon, "short term" convicts from Queens County.

TRAPPER KILLS RIVAL.

HARTFORD, Ct., Jan. 11.—Fred Mosher, a trapper of North Granby, was held for the grand jury on a charge of murder, on his confession that he had slain Al Foley, another trapper, in the woods near the town by choking him. He pleaded self-defence.

EAMES WINS FIRST CLASH WITH DE ORO FOR BILLIARD TITLE

JACK JOHNSON MAKES HIT AS SPEECHMAKER

Jack Johnson is the whole cheese as the fighting attraction in the city this week. His light is somewhat dimmed today on account of the battering elements in the shape of the cold, but the dusky maine in the limelight for the remainder of his stay at the Old Howard, while one of the unlucky candidates must take a back seat after the hostile reception he got.

It isn't often that the big colored champion visits the scenes of his many gory frolics, for like all celebrities who become fixtures in the eyes of the public Big Jack has to divide his time and distribute himself pretty well all over the face of the earth, which he is perfectly willing to do so long as the dockets roll his way.

Jack Johnson the champion and Jack Johnson grinning around the ringside as former days harnessing heat managers for a chance all by himself are miserable for them are two different people.

Forgets "Slack" Days.

These cooling-hardening days have passed for the big Ethiopian, and he is living on easy street for awhile.

Old Howard street hasn't been stirred up so much since the days when Hal Neson tried the theorem line and forced coins to the kids to invite him to a fight, or even a chance to peek at Lil Arthur, for inside the Dime and other such frequent institutions, the big slice of anthracite beans on like a mohammed.

He had a hard position to fill in satisfying the hot-headed fans all the time, where the Jeffries faction is in the majority, but Jack understands his place pretty well and doesn't try to force himself into popular estimation ahead of the white champion.

He knows he has Jeff beaten the last man is one respect, anyway, as a speech maker Johnson is a close rival to any silver tongue orator that ever lived. The way he spills the language around his vicinity knocks everybody out of their feet by the smoothness in which he gets off what he wants to say.

Great on a "Spooch."

Johnson does not claim to have any college degrees tucked away in his boiler-head but he certainly can fill the soft seat with the ease of a magician.

There is a bunch of critics watching Jack every day at the theatre and along in his boiling stuff, the story of his jobs with his sparring partners, Cutler and Jack Heiman, but does not kill himself with work.

Jack refuses to notice the tainted comment that has been made on his job through with his entertainment, only showing his true form of humor when he flatly absent losing Sam Langford, but when it comes time for him to answer the clamoring demand for a speech Jack is right there with the goods and the critics who had been roasting him are forced to plunge in their hostile boiling against the black giant.

Johnson crosses himself from fighting Langford, claiming that two years ago Sammy drug a big gate which is quite true. He says he will affiliate with Hiller before his meeting with Jeffries.

At present Johnson is training pounds stripped and he has eleven weeks more on the stage before active training for his fight.

HILLMAN GOES TO DARTMOUTH

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Three hundred friends and well wishers of Harry Hillman, the noted athlete of the New York A. C., gave him a great farewell send-off on the eve of his departure for Dartmouth, where he will take charge of track athletics. The festivities started off with a theatre party to "The Man Who Owns Broadway" at the New York Theatre and concluded with a banquet at Keene's Chop House.

Hillman received enough silver from his friends, or, to change the figure, from New England collegians. His Brooklyn friends gave him an umbrella, and other admirers presented him with another object of silver. The Brooklynites presented their gift after 9:00 and at 9:01 "The Man Who Owns Broadway." The other presentations were made at the banquet.

Hillman got a great ovation when the Brooklyn gift was presented, and the response was drowned in cheers. The athlete got a back seat with the New York parents. At the banquet many men prominent in athletic circles were among the speakers. All praised Hillman, the athlete with regret at his decision to desert the amateur ranks and lend his talents to help his new duties.

For a decade Hillman has been regarded as one of the greatest runners in the country. He has always been a credit to any and many championships. His friends are legion, and has the best wishes of all the followers of athletics for a successful career as an athletic trainer.

DESHLER'S RING REPUTATION AT STAKE IN BOUT

Dave Deshler, the Cambridge boxer, says he is go on his home tonight when he tackles Young Loughrey, tough Quaker, in the ring at the Armory A. A. This Loughrey has proved the stumbling block to a lot of good boys, and his record may win over Young Donahue shows that he is better than ever with the mitts.

The result of the bout is of considerable consequence to Deshler, as he is out to prove that at catchweights there are few in the ring who have anything on him.

If Deshler can show the top form he has displayed in other fights he should win, as Tommy Quill succeeded in beating Loughrey after three trials, and Deshler put it over the Brocktonite, but the trouble is that the Quaker will also be many degrees better than he was when last seen here.

Champion Jack Johnson will be the guest of honor at the boxing entertainment and will probably have something to say about himself.

In the opening bout Eddie Donahue of the U. S. S. Ohio will tackle Mike Cody of South Boston. This is a pair of new faces at the club. The bout will take the place of the Cahill-Maguire contest. Cahill notified the matchmaker that he could not appear as he is ill with tonsilitis. The bout between Peck LeMaye and Joe Nelson will be the semi-wind up. Neither claims to be scientific, but can hit some. The semifinal will be between Billy Nixon and George Alger. This is a well-matched pair. They have met twice, each having a decision. They come from different wards in Cambridge. Enough said.

EAMES WINS FROM DE ORO

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Fred Eames, the Boston expert, scored a victory at Mc-Graw Billiard Academy over Alfredo Torro in the three-cushion billiard championship game, the title now being held by De Oro. Eames came to the front with a total of 50 to 28 by the 10th number, thereby obtaining a lead of 22 points. The Cuban expert was a 2 to 1 favorite, and as the contest progressed changed to even money on the final outcome.

Eames won the 13th, and chose the black ball. The first attempt netted nothing. De Oro came back with a 2, which he repeated on the 14th, leaving Eames drew another zero. To the sixth inning De Oro again assumed his advantage, when Eames tied the score. The Cuban went to the front in the eighth and led in the thirteenth, when the score was again placed a tie by Eames. From this point Eames was by all odds the better of the two, and he drew away steadily from his opponent.

CHAMPIONSHIPS FOR SPEED SKATERS

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—A schedule of national and international amateur ice speed skating championship events as sanctioned by the International Skating Union, carried out by the vice-president, Allen I. Blanchard, has been announced:

Jan. 23—Western championships at Grafton, Dak.
Jan. 26 and 27—National championships at Crystal Falls, Mich.
Jan. 30 and 31—International championships, Canada, at Pittsburg.
Feb. 2—Eastern championships, Brooklyn.
Feb. 3—Eastern championships, Brooklyn.
Feb. 9 and 10—International championships, at Lake Lulu.
Feb. 16—Canadian championships, Montreal.
Feb. 9 or 10—New England championship, Boston.

President Everett W. Brown of the American Athletic Union has decided in the controversy between the Eastern Skating Association and the International Skating Union that the I. S. U. did right in recognizing Edmund Lamy, the Saranac Lake skater.

BASEBALL NEWS NOTES

Charlie Ebbets was only kidding his associates when he included the name of Knetzer among the list of dead wood. When Griffith refused to waive on the young twirler, the Brooklyn magnate recalled the waiver.

MURPHY STIRS CHANCE AGAIN

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11.—What promises to develop into another full dodge now between Frank Chance, captain-manager of the Chicago Cubs, and President Murphy of the Chicago Club has grown out of the negotiations for Jesse Orendorff, the star catcher of the Los Angeles team of the Pacific Coast League.

According to Henry Berry, manager of the Los Angeles team, Chance said last Saturday that he would take Orendorff on the original Berry received a letter from Murphy in which the latter stated he did not want Orendorff, and asked Berry to keep him in Los Angeles. Berry is in a quandary as he does not know whether to abide by what Chance says or take Murphy's word for the deal.

Berry objects to going over Chance's head. Chance offered Berry to leave Orendorff here if Berry would give him an option on other players of the Los Angeles team. This Berry refused to do, whereupon Chance said he would take Orendorff. Murphy's letter puts another light on the subject, and when informed of the negotiations Chance allowed he would develop a grouch. The captain manager is always an explanation from Murphy.

SIMULTANEOUS CHESS.

The rooms of the Boston Chess Club, No. 241 Tremont street, will be open on the evening of Wednesday, January 12, when the well-known local expert, Peter F. Hill, will give an exhibition of simultaneous chess play. All local chess players are cordially invited to attend and take a board against Mr. Hill, whose exhibition following that of A. M. Sussman of last week will undoubtedly be of much interest to lovers of the game.

NELSON TO BOX LANG.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—Battling Nelson will meet Eddie Lang, a local lightweight, in an eight-round bout at Memphis, January 21.

MAY COUNT OUT JACK DOREY

It is reported in horse circles that Jack Dorey will not be chairman of the race committee of the Metropolitan Driving Club the coming season, and in its selection of officers Wednesday evening for the ensuing year another member of the club will be picked to fill the position.

The fact is not worrying Jack one bit, as he is offered the place in handicapping and starting the events the public is given by the club, and even were he reappointed chairman of the Mile Race committee it is an even break that he accepts the Fellowes precedent also in this way doing double work.

Dorey has made a name for himself in its position, and it will be most favorable to the club or clubs to not let him anyway if their horses are not handicapped to their advantage.

Today the Mets held a big meeting, while on Saturday the Metropolitan Driving Club was in an interclub matinee at Charles River Speedway. The latter gathering has been in the air for some time, which increased interest of not only the members of the two clubs contest for the honors, their main Dorey expects that there will be a dozen events arranged between the organizations.

ZYBSCO THROWS CUTLER.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—Stanislaus Zybsco, the Polish wrestler, defeated Charles ("Kid") Cutler of Chicago in straight falls at the Coliseum tonight, the time being 7 minutes, 20 seconds and 10 minutes and fifty-six seconds, and the second in fifteen minutes and fifty-nine seconds.

Boxing Bouts

MEMPHIS, Jan. 11.—Southern sight fans had little opportunity to see Sam Langford in action at the Phoenix A. C. on account of the ease of stage fright manifested by his opponent, Jim Kid, at the start, but during the brief period that Langford exhibited he created a sensation by his tremendous punching power.

The blows came to Dixie in such rapid fashion that he counted out on the floor after the start of the third round. Before that Dixie had consumed half of the time allotted for the entire bout.

SALEM, Jan. 11.—In the main bout before the Young Men's A. A. at Salem, Kid Boyce of Everett won from Bobby Cavill of South Boston in a fast and interesting mill of eight rounds. Boyce was even for the rounds.

The semi-final was short. Young Harrington winning from Young Roberts, who claimed that his shoulder will forfeture the main bout next week.

BANGOR, Me., Jan. 11.—Tommy Bergen of Lewiston and Kid Panzy of Boston went six fast rounds at the Criterion Club. Although no decision was given, the bout was a draw, both men finishing strong. Since knocking out Arthur Cote of Biddeford Panzy claims the lightweight championship of Maine. The earlier stages of the mill were characterized by almost constant clinching, with much infighting.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 11.—Teddy Lloyd of Philadelphia and Buck Twin Miller of Boston went six rounds to a draw at the New Philadelphia Club, in the second round Malone sent Miller to the floor with a short jolt. After a few exchanges, Miller swung a right to Malone's jaw and the latter went down for the count.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 11.—Terry Fitzgerald outpointed Joe Heffernan at the New Point Breeze A. C. tonight in the semi-final bout of the six rounds.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Young Otto defeated Joe Stein in a ten-round bout at the Olympic A. C. Neither of the boys was anxious to do any real fighting.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Harlem Tommy Murphy defeated Joe Bedell of Brooklyn in a ten-round contest at the Bedford A. C. in Brooklyn. Murphy did all the fighting and had Bedell boxing on.

FINEST COLLECTION OF MOTOR CARS EVER SEEN

By J. C. KERRISON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The motor show in Madison Square Garden can really be considered as giving the last word not only in utility, but in beauty of form and distinction of style in the motor designs of 1910.

It is splendid in its adornments. Classic is the beauty of its decorations. The old method of color is magnificently the finest ever seen. There seems to be nothing lacking. The improvements disclosed are almost entirely in the direction of change, and the engineers evidently being satisfied with what they achieved last year, in strictly mechanical tendencies the show brings out little beyond what has been seen in advanced models.

Perhaps the most prominent changes are those in the Alco, whose make, although being used the shaft drive in the town car during the past two or three years, have instituted a radical departure by changing from chain to shaft in its 40 and 60 horse-power models. Accompanying the change in shaft drive into the discard goes double side chain drive and there is found the make-a-break system of cars for 1910 in the Alco. Also a pressure arm and pump there was featured shaft drive and pump each lighting, the Bosch dual system of high tension magneto and storage battery, with one set of spark plugs, being employed in the latter.

New Alco Feature.

A floating rear axle construction also is offered, but neither if nor the shaft-drive is an experiment, having first been shown on the Alco town car. With these main changes to attract attention the public is asked to inspect a line which consists of a six-cylinder, 60-horse-power chassis, and four other models identical, a four-cylinder, 40-horse-power chassis with any style of body desired; a four-cylinder, 32-horse-power chassis, with any style of body desired; a four-cylinder, 22-horse-power chassis in other than open-car models; a four-cylinder, 16-horse-power cab and a four-cylinder, 16-horse-power coupe. Besides these is the Alco full floating type of rear axle, the engaging member of a one-piece drop forging, which is continuous from end to end, with bevel gears and differential housing being carried by the forward housing.

A radius rod of pressed steel takes up the driving and braking torque is maintained by the rear springs being fitted with the radius rods surrounding the axle at the front end. The universal joint at the front end being attached to a bracket on the frame. On the propeller shaft are two universals and a slip joint. As before, the Alco engine castings are supported and it is evident that the engine will have been slightly increased in diameter.

New Stevens-Duryea.

The latest addition to the Stevens-Duryea line is the five passenger, six cylinder, which carries its fly-wheel in the rear of the motor and which, in the opinion of J. W. Bowman of Boston, is a mistake. Another difference between the new and old members of the family is that the former has a magneto affixed instead of platform springs in the rear.

The six-cylinder touring car carries all the familiar Stevens-Duryea earmarks, the long hood covering a 48-horse-power, six cylinder motor. The cylinders are cast in pairs, the valves are mechanical and the cylinder chambers are integral. The exclusive Stevens-Duryea feature which permits of the lifting of the cylinder heads to get at the valves on the cylinders or breaking the water connections. The valves on the engine are worked by taking off the bottom half of the crank case and getting on the lower half of the connecting rod.

The four-cylinder cars in the Stevens line, the Y is continued from 1909, and the four-cylinder, 30-horse-power will be started in 1908 and now is on its third year, is one of the most attractive cars. The familiar Stevens engine is about the same, being of the T type, with the valves on one side and operated from one cam shaft, while lubrication is by means of a gear-driven plunger pump and a splash gear and which forces the oil direct to the crank-shaft bearings, the overflow supplying the splash system. Novel in the carburetor is a dash adjustment which permits varying the tension of the spring controlling the valve of the auxiliary air opening.

The needle valve in the nozzle and the throttle are adjustable interconnected, while the intake pipe is so constructed as to prevent the system used by the Detroit Engine Gravity feed to the engine. Ignition is by a Bosch Polly as conventional, a centrifugal pump, bevel driven, delivers the water into the base of the jacket on the non-valve side. The Stevens still sticks to the progressive type of transmission, while the clutch contains alternate sets of disks, one secured to a carrier on the crankshaft and the other to a carrier on the transmission.

Big Franklin Exhibit.

It is doubtful if any other concern exhibiting in the garden has a larger line than the one exhibited by the Franklin Company, whose air-cooler output for 1910 numbers sixteen models, three of which are touring cars, the two larger of which have either a regular full size touring body or runabout, tonneau and five runabouts in the open cars and three limousine and landaulets and town cars and taxicab among the closed cars. The Franklin still sticks to the air-cooling principle, but this system has been greatly simplified and its efficiency increased for the new year.

The engine has received the greatest attention at the hands of the designers. A new method of employing the cooling air currents by the flywheel has been employed.

In the Franklin, as the general public knows, each of the cylinders had been surrounded by a series of horizontal metallic flanges of phosphor bronze shrunk under the exterior walls and greatly magnifying the exterior or heat radiating surface of the cylinders. The change for 1910 comes in making these flanges vertical instead of horizontal, the flanges being steel and cast into the cylinder body instead of being shrunk on to it. The gear driven fan in the front of the hood long famous in parts of the Franklin equipment because of this change.

Air Cooling Device.

Surrounding each cylinder is a cylindrical sleeve of sheet metal and through the funnel-like opening a strong current of air is drawn from the bottom by a suction flywheel at the rear of the engine base. The entire base is given a housing by sheet metal in which is the main suction of the cylinder enclosures to the fan and the air passes through this and forms a deck extending from the funnel cylinder going to the side pockets of the chassis frame, and this, with a pan below the crank case, forms a chamber in which the air pressure is made by the fly-wheel, and not less than atmospheric. His pressing down is essential necessary for the introduction of the air current from above.

After the air has performed its cooling functions it is exited from the rear of the engine by small and often out from the sides of the fan. Here is displayed what is admittedly one of the best looking bodies in the entire show, and differs materially from the others in that the hood is flat-like instead of bonnet, giving to the car a distinctive appearance. It is likely to be seen a great deal this classy car will surely go to the public.

Has Severe Body Types.

The Cadillac exhibit consists of five complete cars, an open chassis, with parts of the motor, transmission, universal joint, steering gear and so forth cut away, operated by an electric motor. In addition, there is a large assortment of Cadillac parts. The Cadillac "Thirty," the latest production of the company, is shown with two types of bodies, viz., five passenger touring car and a handsome limousine with three passenger roadsters with rumble seat, seven passenger limousine and two landaulets.

The motor is the four-cylinder, four-cycle type with cylinders cast en bloc and fitted with copper water jackets.

Dynamotor is used, the motor so develop thirty-three horsepower. It is water-cooled, the circulation being by centrifugal pump and plate type, the air draught augmented by a fan driven from the fly-wheel. There are two ignition systems; one, low tension magneto, the other Delco dry cell coil, with controlling relay, dry cell current. Two sets of spark plugs. The lubrication of the motor is by automatic splash system. The carburetor is the Cadillac single design and make. The transmission is the selective type of sliding gear with three speeds forward and reverse.

BOTH TAYLOR AND DOVEY IN BOSTON

Baseball headquarters grew lively today. President John I. Taylor arrived at the American League Club offices after a vacation of three weeks, prepared to take up the business of the season with Secretary McBreen and Manager Donovan. President John C. S. Dovey of the Boston Nationals also arrived at the offices in the Pierce building, returning from his vacation in St. Louis.

Manager Fred Lake of the Dovey got back from New York today. His conferences with Manager McGraw of the giants was fruitless. Lake didn't care to burden his club with any old dunger, and McGraw was not willing to let any of his recruits join the Boston team at this stage of the game as he wants to make further look at them on the southern training trip.

"I will still keep on the job to strengthen the club," said Lake today. "And I have from now until we leave for the South to land a few men. We will not go to Augusta until about March 6, so I have two months to scare up some talent.

Mr. Dovey said he enjoyed his vacation immensely. "St. Louis is my old home," he said, "and I met many friends there. I am glad to get back and to work again. I will talk the situation over with Manager Lake at once and hope to have some news for you before long."

President Taylor said he would probably remain in Boston until January 22, and then go back to California, where his family is. He was gratified to learn that so many of the Red Sox had signed up, and he thought it was the opinion that the club would have very little difficulty in rounding up all the men to contracts long before it was time to leave for the training trip.

FURY'S SIDE OF SHEVLIN BOUT

Tommy Fury, the Attleboro slugger, came up to the BOSTON AMERICAN today and wanted to state his position clearly in the controversy in which he was involved in his match with Eddie Shevlin at the Armory A. A., when he failed to appear.

"It was not my fault that I failed to appear against Shevlin at the Armory A. A.," said Fury, "I was told by Paddy Monahan, the referee, that the bout was off and so did not appear, and was much surprised to read in the papers that there was a misunderstanding as to my appearance the next day.

"I am ready to fight Shevlin and will make the match any time that Shevlin's manager is ready, and I am willing to bet even that I will be there when the bell rings. I have been out of the ring for a month and don't hear the latest news till it is too late to get on to it. I am still training on, but I know one thing perfectly well that is if Shevlin is afraid to in the ring it will be curtains for him."

MOTORMEN ON THE MAT.

That principal wrestling bout at the Columbia to-morrow night will be between Gundersen and Lindfors, formerly known as "The Boston Elevated Motorman," and Carl Olaf Lindfors, known as "The New York Gripman." Gundersen is now in the employ of the Boston & Northern and Lindfors has a fine record for victories over many of the two local Italian to make things interesting.

JACK JOHNSON GREETED BY BIG CROWD ON ARRIVAL

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

LANGFORD KNOCKS OUT THE DIXIE KID IN THREE ROUNDS

Mr. Dwindle---By Igoe

"WELL WHERE HAVE YOU BEEN UNTIL THIS HOUR?"
"JUST A MINUTE WIFEY AND I'LL TELL YOU ALL ABOUT IT."
"WELL I'LL TELL YOU FLOSS, YOU SEE THEY HAD A LITTLE STAG AT THE CLUB FOR THE MARRIED MEN AND OF COURSE THEY INSISTED ON MY BEING THERE"
OH IS THAT SO! AND ME HOME HERE ALL ALONE, COULDN'T YOU HAVE PHONED ME?
"THEY HAD A GREAT FEED AND SPEECHES AND THINGS, ALL OF A SUDDEN THE TOASTMASTER OF THE CLUB GETS UP AND SAYS HE HAS AN UNUSUAL PRESENTATION TO MAKE ALL THE TIME HE HELD A BIG BAND-BOX IN HIS HAND."
HOW NICE! ANOTHER SITTING HERE WAITING FOR YOU.
"GENTLEMEN - HE BEGAN, I HAVE IN MY HAND A GENUINE D. SILK HAT WHICH IS TO BE PRESENTED TO THE MARRIED MAN WHO WILL STAND UP AND TRUTHFULLY SWEAR THAT DURING THE PAST YEAR, HE HAS NOT SNEAKED OFF AND FLIRTED WITH ANOTHER WOMAN, STAYED LATER HOURS, GONE ON JOY RIDES OR FLIRTED IN THE SUBWAY. IF THERE BE ONE LET HIM STAND UP!"
AND ALL THE TIME THIS WAS GOING ON I THOUGHT OF ME!
"WELL FLOSS, EVERYBODY SAT STILL FOR A WHILE, THEN THERE WAS A RUMBLE OF A CHAIR OVER IN THE CORNER AND UP GOT LITTLE JIMMY BROOKS! THE PRESIDENT WALKED OVER TO HIM AND, AMID THUNDEROUS APPLAUSE, PLACED THE SILK HAT ON HIS HEAD!"
NOW THERE'S A HUSBAND WHO IS A HUSBAND
"SAY - SEE HERE! - WHY DIDN'T YOU STAND UP?"
"OH PSHAW! I'D LOOK LIKE THE DICKENS IN A SILK HAT!!"

CLUBS AT HOT SPRINGS READY TO HOLD BOUTS

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—J. C. Heilmiger of this city has gone to Hot Springs, Ark., where he is to reopen the Hot Springs Athletic Club on a more elaborate scale than ever. The season at the Arkansas resort, it is claimed, will be one of the greatest ever had there, and the boxers who promised some lively sport. Heilmiger is looking for Eddie Lang or some other good lightweight to meet Tommy Devlin there for the opening card about Jan. 25. He also wants to get hold of some good welterweights. He can be addressed in care of the Maurice Bath House.

"Colonel" Andy Mulligan of Hot Springs says that he, too, intends opening an athletic club there and will devote some of his attention to the wrestling game. He is looking for a good young heavyweight that he can feature. Andy's address is No. 522 Central avenue.

WILKKESBARRE GETS RED SOX PLAYER

Pitcher William Mathews was disposed of yesterday by the Boston Americans to the Wilkesbarre club of the New York State League, where Bill Clymer will try to develop the boy into a headliner. Mathews is the pitcher brought here from Trenton about the middle of last season. He did fairly good work, but a few chips shy of the real stuff to make a Speed Boy possibility.

RELAY RACES FOR BOSTON COLLEGE MEET

Manager William D. Murphy of the Boston College track team has announced that a number of relay races have been arranged for the open meet to be held in the Boston College gym on James street, on Tuesday evening, February 8. One of the match relays that is causing a lot of interest is that arranged between Boston and Holy Cross colleges.

This meet, which is to be held every year under the sanction of the A. A. U., always draws together a great crowd of athletes. It comes this year just before the B. A. A. games and it will give the runners a chance to size up their opponents for the Mechanics' Hall clash.

Almost two-thirds of the Boston College track team candidates are practicing every day on the new track that has been put in the college gym. Coach McCarthy is busy at present teaching the men the proper stride and the method of taking the corners.

Those wishing to enter in the meet can obtain applications for the same by applying to Manager William D. Murphy of the Boston College track team.

BOXING NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Johnny Glover, the banium, has been secured to entertain Nap Dufresne in Canada on January 20.

Eddie Holland has decided to give Young Nichols a good rub, and the Kensington boxer will be out of the game for a month or more.

* * *

Some club sanctioned would make a hit by staging a ten-round bout between Young O'Leary and Phil Mellevern. The lookin to be a dandy card, and it would be a rattling good bout.

Abe Attell has arrived in New York from his trip to Savannah, where he stopped Eddie Kelly in the second round. Abe says he may be seen in one of the three bouts that will precede the Jeff-Johnson mill.

Black Bill, who has fought Gibbons, Wolcott and others, wants to get back in the game. He would like to take the open mits at Pittsburg and meet Sam Langford. The Pittsburg promoters have been advertising for quite a few Langford and Bill wants the job.

Billy Gibson says no date has been set for the reopening of the Fairmont Club, but it will surely be within a few weeks. The small clubs in New York are buying their pick of the field now, but it will not be so after a few of the "big fellows" get going. The Sharkey Club opens Wednesday night. "Gentlemen, keep your hands in your pockets going out."

* * *

Billy Leary, the Jersey City welterweight, writes saying that he wasn't knocked out by Billy West last week at Watervliet, N. Y., and he wants his friends to know it. All right, Bill, it's in the paper. Leary asserts that one Jerry Yost was the loser knocked out, and that he assumed his name for the occasion.

STRAIGHT DOPE
FOR SPORT FANS

MANY OF THE FIGHT FANS ARE not enthusiastic over the end at the Armory Club to-night, but take it from me, Loughrey and Dexiter will make a pretty fast go. Here's my dope: Young Donahue, by nice course work at fouling, kept Young Loughrey from showing his best line of goods when these two met at the Tripp A on recently, which might have made him a strong favorite. Therefore the fans are minus dope on Loughrey. Dario Dexiter is pretty strong when he isn't forced to make the lightweight limit, and as tonight's bout is at catch weights, it seems to give a better chance than in the last few nights. Atech McLean, Dexiter's manager, is a pretty wise man and isn't making any matches for his protege where he has to get down to weight. Dexiter will weigh about 140 pounds when he steps into the ring to-night, which gives him his full fighting strength.

SAM LANGFORD HAS A GREAT press agent in that Pittsburg Director of the Department of Public Safety, who says there are lot six men in the world who have a chance to win from the Boston Tar Baby. He then names Jeffries, Johnson, Kaufman, Ketchel, Papke and Philadelphia Jack O'Brien as the only men Sam will be allowed to mix up in the Smoky City. That's all right for a starter, but he should have made it two men, and chopped right off after he had named Jeff and Johnson. I don't think Sam would even be taken into the ring with Langford unless they were tied, and it is pretty near a cinch that they'd have to be helped out. For that matter I don't think the champion wants any of Langford's game, so this leaves only Jeff, and he is in a quandary. Sam always barred the California boilermaker. Pretty good press agent that Pittsburg man, but his work don't help Sam to buy any pork chops.

BY THE WAY, SPEAKING OF LANGford, did you notice what he did to that Dixie Kid last night down in Memphis. A little over four years ago the Kid defeated Sam only let it go that far to give the spectators a little run for their money. Judging from the way he has toppled over in his last few fights, he has grown tired letting these second raters linger long with him. Looks like he would soon have them all worked off.

IT'S FINE BUSINESS TO HAVE some unlow youth not only refuse to accept good advice when it is offered but to try to get back at me when I'm trying to do him a favor. Here's a youngster who wrote me that he felt like a fighter, but wasn't sure about himself. Really, I think he should pass up that Hasson and Essex chop suey, late hours and general rough life and get a job in the cats and laundry again. He's there on the comeback though, for look at this:

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Dear sir—Have a word with, sirrah? you? In to-day's paper, you print my challenge to young Donahue at 147 pounds. Then you start to show me up by a lot of free advice that you wouldn't asked for, even as a "duck in the grocery wagon," etc. Yeah, it's really funny when one who thinks you a sucker tries to bluff. But the average reading of your column believes it doesn't. Now, I'll tell you what I'll do—either box Donahue for the paltry purse you've mentioned or match a big bout with Dick Finnegan. Either you've lasted into the ancient history of Richard and gone on to Dempsey, Corbett, Conner farce. Do you think we are a lot of farms? Be up-to-date and I'll go with you any of the day. Who in thunder cares for the ring history of Ireland.

Looks to me as if you're in the class you parse, Jeff. Fish and others—"Can't come back."

Now, don't get sore, but think this over. And if you print it—which I doubt—for your readers might get more wise to your cut out free advice. Yours truly,
YOUNG SCROGGS.
246 Tremont street, Boston.

HERE'S A LETTER FROM A PROVIdence man who hands it out cold turkey to a class of sports I paid my respects to a few days ago. I'm glad he agrees with me, and if a lot more boxing fans looked at things the same way the game would get along better:

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Dear Sir—Have always admired your column, but never as much as to-night. Those tin horn sports that are blowing your way about a fighter being yellow because he succumbs follow up the sponge to save him from a knockout, are the kind that would stand a dollar out of the baby's bank, to say admission to a beer and free lunch. I see a fighter quit would think the story was only worth ninety cents and turn around and stop at the box office on their way out to get the other dime.

If a fighter's handler don't know when his man is whipped, then he is the wrong man on the job. I like to see two fighters go the limit when it is hard to pick a winner, but when one is all beat and the other all in, what is the use of having a knockout to satisfy a lot of yahoos, and your statement about that being the sort of thing that has brought boxing into disrepute in this country is the utmost thing I have ever read. Correct, the sport of the Bobchester regime and that of Boy Kraft's old club in Scituate, R. I., a few years ago. I was at the ringside that night, and a more disgusting exhibition I have nothing stands out. I hope you will keep hammering at it and to these bargain sale sports, and also you have your vacation, look me up. Respectfully,
J. TAFFY DONOVAN
156 Superior street, Providence, R. I.

L. AND R., PROVIDENCE, R. I.—It will have to settle. George M. Cohen was born in Providence, R. I., in 1878.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Will you please tell me if you think Jerry Gaines is a lemon, as this guy from a local paper says he is. I intend to go down and see the match. Yours truly,
J. FRED KING.
Worcester.

Jerry is far from being a lemon. He's a good strong fellow with a good strong wallop, and if Lemoyne's friends hold him down enough they're likely to find something happening that will surprise them.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Will you please answer in your paper for me that Young Brown, the colored welterweight, who would like to get on with Knight of Lawrence or Abie Kaiser of Lynn.
MOE GOLDEN ALLEN.
No. 519 Ferry st., Everett, Mass.

ANYBODY WANT A JOB MANAGING a boxer? Don't all speak at once. Here's a New Bedford youngster who thinks he's good, and maybe he is:

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Dear Sir—As I am a constant reader of your column, I would like to ask you a few questions. First, I am 5 feet 7 inches tall, but I think I can beat a lot of these 125-pounders. I am nineteen years old, can box right and can fight inches, and weigh 145 pounds in street clothes. I am a new manager, as yet I am only trying to break into the business. I am a member of the Y. M. C. A. here, and box at the rooms. If you will kindly answer these few questions I will greatly oblige.
Yours for work,
"KID" EVERETT.
New Bedford, Mass.

MAX LEVIN, EAST WALPOLE, MASS. —Your question has nothing to do with sport, so I won't answer it.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Kindly tell me the date Johnson, when and where Jim Mettling, the bicycle rider, was killed. Also who the other was that was killed in Madison Square Garden in 1905 while racing. Thanking you in advance,
P. H. G.
Danvers, Mass.

Louis Mettling of West Roxbury was killed in Germaine about August, 1908. McDonald was killed in Madison Square Garden while riding with Iver Lawson as team mate, in December, 1907.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Will you please tell me why the Armory A. A. does not put on a game scrapper like Tommy Quill of Roxbury, who has demonstrated several times that he can draw? I understand he does not get along with the management. If so I would like to know what. Can you tell me? Yours truly,
CONSTANT READER.

I'm sure I can't tell you why Tommy Quill doesn't get on. If it is true that he doesn't, I think you are wrong, however, as Tommy has not done any boxing recently, simply because he did not care to. I have a strong hunch that he will meet someone at the Armory before long, and probably that someone will be Mike Twin Sullivan.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Dear Sir—Will you kindly inform me where I can obtain tickets for the South Boston Athletic Club games which are to be held in Mechanics Building on January 22? I would appreciate it very much if you would answer in your column. Very truly yours,
H. M. MYERS.

168 GAMES TOO HARD TO PLAY SAYS DREYFUSS

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 11.—It is not certain that the National League will play the extended schedule of 168 games this year, though that number of contests was agreed upon at the meeting, but much by a unanimous vote. President Barney Dreyfuss has always opposed the scheme, and the only reason he voted for it when it came up was in order that he might make a motion to reconsider at the Spring meeting, which he could not have done if he had voted against it. Mr. Dreyfuss will draw up a 154-game schedule to be presented at the meeting of the Schedule Committee in Pittsburg on January 24, and he hopes that it will be adopted.

"It is hard for me to see a single reasonable argument in favor of extending our present schedule," said Mr. Dreyfuss. "Baseball is a dead proposition after the last week in September, unless two clubs are fighting neck and neck for the pennant. At times it is very hard to get the boys to play the game, and possibly right. The weather is bound to be bad for part of the time, and the fans are ready to turn their attention to football anyway, at that time. It will be impossible to give the Western clubs any more Sundays, for they will have to spend enough time in the East to keep the extra cost down.

"Most of the cities would lose money by lengthening the season, and it is practically certain that the attendance would fall off. Here is the probability of more conflicts with baseball and football, which we should be lessened instead of being increased. I am opposed to the extended schedule of 168 games drawing up by Mr. Filoletti, and to this mind it does not fill the bill at all. I think there are very serious objections to it, and I will present them out at the schedule meeting. If I'm ready with a regular 154-game schedule, and I hope that the League will reconsider and adopt the same at its Spring meeting."

BARRETTE FAILS TO THROW JACK KELLY

NEW BEDFORD, Jan. 11—Between one and 500 men, who expected to see a wrestling match to-night between Eugene Tremblay and Jack Kelly of Watertown, were disgusted when a telegram was received from Tremblay stating that he was ill in Montreal. Kelley took on Wilfred Barrette of Lowell, Canada, agreeing to throw Barrette twice in an hour. The bout was on the level, fast and savage. Barrette forcing Kelley desperately and Kelly being cautioned twice for attempting the strangle hold. Neither got a fall.

GREAT AND FAIR PLAYERS CONTRASTED BY M'GRAW

There is a lot to John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, in addition to his nickname of "Muggsy."

He's a scrapper. But you know that. He is also a student. Not only of baseball, but of affairs of the day in general and of the governments specifically.

You probably didn't know that McGraw spoke French. Also you may have been ignorant of the fact that Mcgraw played baseball in France. But he did play baseball there and he does speak French.

Fluently? Probably as fluently as one of the name of McGraw could. And when it comes to familiarity with the governments of Europe, "Muggsy" is a shark. You see Mcgraw traveled all over Europe and being possessed of an eye that saw much that was not on the surface and being the possessor of a mind that grasped problems not always explained, the fighting manager of the Giants learned much and profited greatly.

French No Aid on Ball Field.

Now on the ball field this would help him little. For think O'Day just as likely as not would become peeved if McGraw used a bit of stolen French language at him. The chances are the only question in Hank's mind would be as to whether McGraw was French or Spanish. Also that would be the question in the fevered Giant. And here to what he has to say:

"There are two great baseball players possessing the smallest of a knowledge of baseball who are almost left where the batter put them.

"It's a sensation that few ball players possess. Baker is their great.

"There is George Davis of the White Sox, for instance. You could scarcely say that he is a fast man any more. Yet his possesses the instinct of a baseball player. Place him on second base and he almost to a foot knows where the batter will hit the ball.

"It's standard out, and Davis, by taking a step to one side or the other, is in front of it. Up in the grandstand someone remarks:

"See, that Davis is lucky."

Intuition Causes Player to Move.

"It was not his luck. It was baseball intuition, along with a general knowledge of the batter, that caused him to move to within a few feet of where that ball was hit. He couldn't do it every time, of course, but the same with Johnny Evers. I sit on the bench and look at this fellow. Evers is one of my batters. I imagine myself playing second. I say to myself, 'Now if I were playing that boy I would move to this position.' I watch Evers. You would be surprised how often we would play the man alike. Of course we have studied the batter and his past. We know where he usually hits. But that isn't enough. There is a certain sense which only a few baseball men possess.

"They come under the category of quick thinkers. Perhaps they have not the brain capacity of the young man out of college. But these fellows do not always make good for the reason that they are not quick thinkers.

Must Be Quick Thinker.

"Give them a problem, one that requires close study, and they will have it on the quick thinker of the diamond. But place them out there on the field, where they haven't time to make deductions, where they must decide in an instant, and they are not there.

"Thoughts in these days must come to the ball players in a flash and not after mature deliberation. That is the time that separates him and me from the minor leagues. So, the ball player of to-day must be a quick thinker."

McGraw's remarks were drawn as the result of the query, "What is necessary to win a pennant?"

The pennant of a major league was mostly won by the end of last season, declared the wise baseball philosopher.

"There are three things necessary," was the answer.

"The first is a good pitching staff. A star pitching staff, I might say.

"There are three pitchers in the league who can be counted on for ball after ball. They are the class of the league.

"The second thing is a good pitching staff. It avails you nothing if you can make four runs in a game, but are compelled to rely on a bunch of pitchers that can be touched for five apiece. You finish second.

"So you must have a straight pitching staff. Then you have to have a bunch of men who are fast on the bases.

"If you fill out all the positions right to the home plate.

"That is the reason it is so hard to find the key to the pennant winning situation. You get good pitchers and good hitters, but a lot of fellows on the bases who are slow. No pennant for you. Then you get good pitchers and fast men on the bases, but who can hit? There is no pennant for you. But once you hit the combination—good pitching, good hitting, fast men on the bases—and the pennant is yours.

"Those three things mark the difference between a great team, a pennant winning team and a good team, one that finishes in the first division, but not on top."

Mirandy Discourses on Mental Suggestion

By Dorothy Dix

"'S IS MIRANDY," says Sis Dilsey, to a grand lookin' woman dat fine clothes me do nuther deny, "does you be subtilly does become fusted of growth' at you an' axin' you what you did wid dat quarter her give you de week befo' last, when you exes him jer enough money to buy some pork chops for supper."

Mirandy Doesn't Believe It.

"How dey claim dat dis mental sug gestion will do all dat for a man what is a husband?" I axes said awe in my tones.

"Dat's de way dey prognosticates de doctrine," spons Sis Dilsey.

"Well, I don't believe in it," I stoms. "You might make a young gal be lieve dat, or maybe a bride, but not a woman dat's had thirty years' experience in de holy estate. Is I gwine walk yo' rabbit's foot on a man befo' you is married to him, an' git anythin' you wants out of him, but effen yo'se gwine fed up wid him till takes no' dan a conjer powder to make him loosen up. His takes a charge of dynamite."

"That's a sweet idee," said Sis Dilsey, "to think of a wife sittin' in a cheer, a sweatin' her sculls around her husband, and do not mentally jest what it is dat she wild de rollin' pin, but de results would not come to spend de evenin' in de bosom of de family."

"De ordinary man am a debbil or a hero—just as de woman thinks"

"There's some wives dat has a mighty restrainin' influence on dere husbands, bless Gord," spons Sis Dilsey, "an ev'y body knows dat Beer Ike walks de straight an' narrow path."

"But he does," says I, "an' he's lakly to as long as I is a able-bodied woman."

"I thought maybe dat you used de mental suggestion on him," says Sis Dilsey, in a sort of a disappointed way.

"Yaas, I just takes whatever is handiest, whedder hits a flatiron or a bed slat. I ain't particular about weapons." I spons. "Sis Mirandy," axes sis Dilsey, "don't you put no faith whatsomever in mental suggestion bein' a cure for divorsch?"

"I does," sponds I, "but dat's jes' de shoe on de wrong foot. I thinks dat mental suggestion is one of dese heah remedies dat you can wish on yo'self, but not on anybody else. De only way to keep people from gettin' divorsches is to keep 'em from wantin' 'em, an' if women would spend no' time suggestin' to deyselves dat dey had better git busy doing dere duty as wifes, instead of tryin' to conjer dere husbands into enough pile Golden eyeouth', bit might sorter put a spoke into de divorsch mill."

"Now, Sis Dilsey, you knows des as well as I does, dat dere ain't no man in de world dat is de least bit like what a woman makes him out. She elder wrops him up in pink silk an' things, an' makes him a hero, which he ain't—or else she puts hheels an' horns on him an' calls him a devil—which he ain't, neither.

"Yo see, when de good Lawd made woman he made her a little short on some qualities, an' den he made up de lack by throwin' in a extry lot of imagination, because He knowed dat we'd need hit in our business of bein' wives. Dis bein' de case, of anybody can jest get women to use dere imagination an' men after dey is married to 'em, lak dey did befo, why den dat'll settle dis heah divorsch question.

The Only Time He Will Work.

"Dat's what makes me say dat I think dat de mental suggestion what you'se a talkin' about, would win out right if de women would conjer deyselfs into thinkin' dat dere husbands is handsome an' mannerly and generous an' kind, dey lak dey was bein' marriage; but dat de mental suggestion ain't gwine to wuk worth a cent when dey tries to do miracles an' really make dere husbands into dem household treasures dat dey ought to be.

"No, Sis Dilsey," I goes on, "dere ain't but one woman dat can conjer a fat, bald headed, grouchy ole married man into bein' young an' spry, an' polite, an' agreeable."

"And who is dat?" inquired Sis Dilsey. "His some woman dat ain't his wife, an' dat's young enough to be his daughter," spons I.

WHEN, after Cullimore's departure, you came to himself, it was with a feeling that he had been immured for months instead of less than twenty-four hours. The blow from the big brass key had not been severe, it had simply been the last straw beneath which his endurance, already strained to the utmost, had given way.

Furthermore, he awoke to a realization of the importance of recuperating his strength as quickly as possible; there were provisions in the locker, and after a forced meal he turned its attention to effecting his escape. He at once engaged what startled to the front door resulting in—

Fifty+ummering glass stood with an proval the quiet air of determination which seemed how to present the young man. Indeed, their face a marked change in Cole' himself. Three consecutive days and nights his every movement, every thought, had been controlled by an almost blind anger, but not an unreasonable anger.

The very fervor of his resentment against the villains had shielded and sabered him, as he comprehended the nevertheless of a cool head and deliberate action. His face had settled into inflexible lines; his eyes were an unchanging, hard expression that beckoned how readily he would deal with the arch-criminal once they came face to face.

The automobile was whirling downward. Philip was making his admiration for the way in which Cullimore had been hoodwinked, when their car him short.

What Cullimore Told

"Tell me," he directed curtly, "just what you got out of Cullimore."

Flint proceeded to obey.

"In the first place, your deductions as to the manner in which Miss Day was kidnaped were correct."

"Why did they do it?" The hard look regarded Flint steadily.

He shook his head. "Cullimore don't know. At least, he doesn't know all the ins and outs of the matter; his ignorance of so many things explains the promptness with which he tumbled into your snare.

"By drinking your wedding till after the 12th—that's next Tuesday—Camarini was putting himself in the way of securing a vast fortune. What do you think? Why, The Englishman don't know how. I think there's a good deal well have to hear from Miss Day herself."

"The 12th," he repeated; "that's Miss Day's birthday."

"You don't say." For a second or two Flint remained in a brown study. "Well, I haven't all the facts," he continued at length; "we are handicapped. When we move again we must be sure it's in the right direction. Cullimore couldn't throw any light upon Camarini's influence over the young lady; I think the answer is very simple, though."

Cole calmly ignored the proffered explanation.

"You're not telling me what you learned from Cullimore," said he.

"Never! But I'm so full of this thing that I hardly know how to talk coherently about it."

"Well, then, 'The Master' himself, it would seem, attended personally to all important matters. It seems to be Dudley Keen his looks as dumb as possible in ignorance—doubtless one secret of his success. He administered the poison to Hilton; Cullimore designated the house where other members of the gang were disposed of the body under cover of night. By the way, Rekeve [illegible]

Woman's One False Trait

By KENNETT HARRIS

I DON'T say women fib and feign or that they love deceit,
I don't accuse them of chicane—they're far too good and sweet,
But when they scorn the most beldan and kiss and coo and such,
I wouldn't take it as a sign thy love each other much.

That women are sincere I'm not attempting to deny,
I also will admit a lot of us male persons lie;
But only when I'm sure it pays me big, I beg to state,
Do I throw beautiful bouquets at people whom I hate.

If any one's offended me, I'm apt to cut him dead,
Or, that is as the case may be, I punch his blooming head.
I do not greet him with a smile or throw a joyous fit—
Unless I see it's worth my while to fool him up a bit.

On woman's honesty I'll bank, as anybody may.
They're commonly entirely frank and mean just what they say.
At times, of course, they don't, and this, I must admit, is wise;
But no one ever saw me kiss a fellow I despise.

I know my wife eails Mrs. Smith a creature and a cat,
And says she has no patience with a brazen thing like that.
This Mrs. Smith can well discern. She hates my wife like sin.
But when they meet—I have to turn my head aside and grin.

No, women are not insincere, mendacious or untrue.
I'm making no such charges here in saying this to you.
To call them false is awful rot; but, truly, now and then,
I think it's sad that they are not straightforward as we men.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

The Bill Clerk's Protest

He Tells of His Troubles with the Laundryman

By KENNETT HARRIS

"I LOST my laundry ticket last week and when I tried to get my bundle the slant-eyed, tin-colored dope-pig that was doing the laundry with a marking pot and stencil brush wanted to hold out on me." The bill clerk's face was indignant. "I had a notion to strangle him with his own queue," he continued. "Thing of the gall!"

"The insolent scoundrel!" exclaimed the cashier. "How shrewd he! What did you do to him, Johnny?"

"Well, I happened to find the dirted ticket," explained the bill clerk. "It had got wadded up in one corner of my vest pocket. But you ought to have heard 'em talking it over. Ah-yah, ey-yah, ey-yah, ah-yah," and the bill clerk gave a more or less phonetically correct imitation of the discussion. "They're the limit, those Chinks."

"I quite agree with you," said the cashier. "They certainly have a language that I've never been able to understand. It seems perfectly incomprehensible to me. Still, they appear to understand each other more or less. Some people believe they can read the marks they make on laundry tickets. I don't go so far as that, though. You'll notice that they always give you back a ticket, and when you bring it back it fits the other half where it was torn. So you got your shirt, did you, Johnny?"

"There were three stiff-bosom and two negligee and a lot of other things," answered the bill clerk, with dignity. "Get you? You bet I got 'em. I'd hate got 'em. I'd hate got you ticket or no ticket."

Owed a Duty to Society

"You should made an example of 'em, in my opinion," declared the cashier. "I don't think you were justified in letting the matter rest after you secured your property. That was almost equivalent to allowing them the right to carry on their own business according to their own system. Don't you know that you owe a duty to society—to civilization? You might at least have kicked over a stove and set the place on fire."

"I don't think it would have been any loss if I had," said the bill clerk.

"It would have been a distinct gain," agreed the cashier. "We want no slant eyes or yellow skins in ours. If they would conform to our ideas or optic alignment and tonsorial and sartorial art and would adopt the rest of our customs without reservation, I wouldn't object to them as much as I do; but what can you expect of a people that insists on wearing its shirt outside of its trousers?"

"Now, you're talking," said the bill clerk approvingly.

"Do we want to encourage a depraved taste for effeminate buds and effete males rooms in American youth?" demanded the cashier. "Look at the way the slum-sing restaurants are multiplying. What kind of influence do you call that, and what sort of effect is it going to have on the beef industry, do you suppose? Are we to have beef inhibition forced into our interior decoration without a protest? I treat not.

"But there's no telling what the insidious Oriental will accomplish if he is not checked in time. He has the inoffable mind to refuse a Canadian his shirt—I beg pardon, his shirts and things—the Canadian's dirty shirt and things—such as a thing as that happens, the yellow peril is no figment of a pie-disordered digestion; it is a sad, present reality.

The Sad Case of Diplomat Crane

"Look at Crane, as an illustration of what a once proud nation can descend to. Cut short in a promising diplomatic career; just because he happened to say something that was calculated to offend a parcel of Chinks! Either for that reason or some other. Well, well! Didn't you even clout the pagan son?"

"I didn't," replied the bill clerk. "Those fat lobes weigh from seven to ten pounds apiece, and there were three pagans in mind to heave 'em."

"Perhaps, under the circumstances, you did well to take your shirt and go, admitted the cashier. "But consider, Johnny," he continued. "Not only do they talk like a lien announcing an entirely new egg to the community, but only they wear pajamas in the daytime and play on a single-stringed ukulele in addition to that they set off fire-crackers on their New Year's instead of on the Fourth of July, and pay all their debts once a year. All their debts, Johnny. Think of that! I suppose that debased and shameful practice should infect our callow and unsophisticated young business men, and become in time universal."

"That would be terrible, wouldn't it?" remarked the bill clerk. "Worse than hitting the pipe."

"There's another thing," the cashier said gravely. "If you want to have a good time and save the money, you go out into the broad light of electricity and oil your skin with good, honest alcohol, whereby you are presently moved to hilariously smash anything smashable, even to the faces of innocent bystanders. You howl and you whoop and you make it necessary to call the wagon to get you to the station, thus giving employment to a deserving fellow-being. A Chinaman slinks to his vile basement hunk and stupefies himself with the fumes of the baleful pongy juice which presently send him to sleep and which have a very bad effect on his industrial constitution."

"I thought you said you patronized a Chinese laundry," said the bill clerk.

"I do," confessed the cashier. "They do my work cheap, but I can't forget that they eat rice with chopsticks and use the latter for [illegible]

Audience With the Sphinx

By PIERRE LOTI

Member of the French Academy.

OFTEN, very often, the memory comes back to me of how I had an audience with the great Sphinx at the light of the full moon on a beautiful Autumn night.

It was the first time we met, but its stony face had haunted my soul for many years, this face with its terrifying calm expression, the like of which is not to be found anywhere in the world; and because I had seen its effigy everywhere, I had almost come to believe it non-existing as the faces we see in our dreams.

That night I had left Cairo in a carriage, after having taken dinner at a very modern hotel among a crowd of rich tourists of all nations.

It was so sudden—this change from the lower city to the great shroud of Libya. A road first bordered by magnificent palms, then by small stunted trees, then by nothing at all, the country becoming a kind of vague form with soft outlines, a rose-colored cloud, where one's footstep gave no sound, the sand, the eternal sand that hides so dreamt in the moonlight.

After an hour ride I was asked to descend, to walk up to the Sphinx in deep silence across this sand where the footstep is not heard.

Alongside the great triangular silhouettes of the pyramids arose a shapeless mass, a rock that found a faint resemblance to a crouching beast—it was HE. He was there, always there to remain there in all eternity, protected a little by his strip of desert land against the invasions of modern man.

We approached it from behind, and soon thus it disappointed me. It did not inspire awe; it inspired nothing. The only thing that impressed me was the silence, the sand smothered the sound of our steps, as if we had been walking in a sanctuary.

Suddenly the face came into view, more hardened and mummified by the cold rays of the moonlight, the grand mysterious face, outlined against the sky and statue at the empty horizon as it has done for countless centuries.

And it smiled disdainfully, this grand face, in spite of the mutilations of the ages which have given it the pug nose of a skull.

I sat down facing it on the sand, when the moonlight threw my distorted shadow and, raising my head, I looked into its eyes with my pigsty eyes. Then the feeling overcame me that it saw me, too, a terrible fascination emanated from it, and by its stare I was hypnotized into a state of immobility, silence and nothingness.

THE REASON

THE reason why this clever maid
Will never wear a rat,
Is simply that she recollects
Her mother had a cat.

HOPELESS CASE

The two hopeless inmates of the sanitarium were talking.

"Surely, you don't believe," said the first, "that Rockefeller gave you a million dollars?"

"Of course I do," answered the other "and what's more I'm going to buy myself a railroad with it so it won't cost my family anything to ride when they come to see me."

IF you were entertaining a queen you could want no finer soup than Campbell's Tomato.

No better tomatoes grow than are raised specially for this soup. There is no better celery than the crisp tender stalks with which we flavor it; no fresher or more fragrant parsley; nothing finer than the delicate spices and choice uncolored creamery butter with which it is seasoned. And no chef could blend ingredients more skilfully than these are blended in

Campbell's Tomato Soup

These handsome selected vine-ripened tomatoes are a choice variety of the fine growth for which New Jersey is noted. They grow only a short distance from our plant. They are brought to us right from the garden during the height of the season. And we make them into soup immediately.

They are washed by revolving in the purest running water till they shine like satin. All skin and seeds and core-fibre are strained out through four separate strainers. We use only the pure meat and clear juice. Even the finest shreds of the celery and parsley are removed. The soup as it comes to your table is of the consistency of rich cream. And its flavor and aroma are inviting beyond comparison.

You can realize the perfect quality of this soup only by tasting it. And you can make no mistake by trying it today. We guarantee satisfaction with every can of our soups or the grocer refunds your money. Be sure you get Campbell's. Accept no substitute.

I bid that soup to eat, myself.
The cat's not very big.
But greedy Tom has cleared the shelf.
I hate a pig.

Adeline Genee in "The Silver Star" and Dockstader New Show Offerings

Adeline Genee offers at the Colonial this week a feast of terpsichore. Not only does the incomparable Adeline appear on her toes for almost half the duration of "The Silver Star," but she seems to have built around her a school of dancers who have caught her spirit. The dancing genius is rampant.

As a dancing show "The Silver Star" is remarkable. But it also has other qualities that will appeal to Boston theatre-goers. It has humor. George Bickel and Harry Watson as the two German musicians keep the audience in a constant uproar.

And next to the star, there is the clever little Anna Tucker, who is pretty, sings well and dances with a touch of the grace that has made Miss Genee famous. Her vivacity and smiles carried the audience in splendid fashion.

The chorus is made up of pretty girls, who are dressed in taste, she well sings and can dance. The costumes are dazzling, seasonal abominations, but never in bad taste. As in all shows of its class, the plot is thin and flimsy, serving to string together the specialties. But even in this respect it is superior to most of its kind. There is a pretty little story of the loss of a child by the pushcart man Winchester, who finally recovers it. The acting of Harry Bernard as the wealthy Winchester was excellent.

Miss Genee appears in three wonderful dances. As the fairy at the Christmas tree celebration she gives an exhibition of pure grace and gliding that has seldom been seen here. The lights are used with excellent effect. Her other great dance, and it really was great work, is a gypsy little chorus was beautifully gowned for this champagne glasses and bottles for head-gear and covering the stage with several varieties of liquor known to the cities and others.

Every person in the cast did well. Leo Morrison as Baron Canard, the ambassador's secretary, was a very likable villain. Jr. Stanton Heck as the Duke Sedelle, who met his Waterloo, and Mortimer Welch, who does the lover did excellent work. And then there was Nellie Savoy, the chorus girl, whose dancing, though not on the order of Miss Genee's, was wonderfully graceful, and received its full share of applause.

Globe.

Lew Dockstader, at the head of the best minstrel show Boston has seen in years, entertained a crowded first night house at the Globe Theatre. Everything about the performance was excellent. From Dockstader's flying machine to chorus, from comedy to song, from solo to ensemble thing was crisp and new. There were no old jokes, no old songs, no old scenes. Everything was up-to-date. The singing and dancing were excellent. The applause and heartiness of the applause showed how well the big audience was pleased with the performance Mr. Dockstader gave them.

The spectacular and mystifying feature of the performance is Lew Dockstader's flying machine. It actually does fly on the stage and circled time and again over the heads of the audience, not in the gallery, in the seat in the aeroplane, biplane or whatever the latter really is, but circled around over the heads of the people sang a ditty-y song about how he loved Pearl.

Just how the weird looking aeroplane is operated and what supported it, the people behind the scenes know and understand and see and hear the whirring propellers and the whirr of the machine itself when lighted by the electric lights it carried, but that was about all. It is certainly a thrilling performance.

The company is exceptionally strong. Mr. Dockstader has with him some nie soloists, and the chorus is very good. A people last night proved wonderfully popular. George McKenna, W. H. Rosenberg, Master Snuffy Neil O'Brien and Eddie Mazley were the most popular of the soloists, and the audience was loth to let them leave the retire.

The little farce, "Fighting the Flames," in which Messrs. O'Brien, Daley, Thompson, Hallett, Evangelist and Gallo appear, was a capital attraction. It proved one of the most popular features of the performance. Gilbert C. Losee and his group of dancers who do a "Dream of Infinity" dance and singing stunt also made a great hit. Of course, Dockstader's is the great feature and one of his funniest bits is his North Pole monologue. Amie Alton Hamlin's troupe of Arabian acrobats are also very clever.

Boston Theatre.

A special matinee of "Bright Eyes" was given this afternoon to enable members of the theatrical profession to witness this bright and dashing show which entered upon its third week last night with unabated popularity. Members of the musical companies playing Boston and vicinity were cordially welcomed, and of course the public was also entitled to buy seats as usual. The hit made by "Bright Eyes" in Boston is beyond the hopes of the producers and the engagement has been extended another week because of the demand to witness the latest Gaities show. Cecil Lean, Florence Holbrook and the other favorites were certainly well chosen to lead this aggregation of funmakers.

Keith's.

Denman Thompson as "Uncle Josh" stays on for a second week at Keith's and if the approval shown for his act is any sign he can stay on indefinitely. And this in spite of the fact that the bill at the vaudeville house this week is of unusual merit. The eight Palace girls, English dancers, assisted by James Thompson, made one of the hits of the evening. They are all of them pretty, and accomplished singers and dancers, give a series of musical numbers in costume that took down the house and kept it ringing. They made a big hit in the pair of mermaids. Their under-water feats are astonishing—but the girls are both pretty and possess superb figures. One of the most successful acts that ever appeared in Boston is Elizabeth M. Murray, whose funny songs in many and who possesses a voice, a rare thing for a dialect singer these days. The rest of the bill runs equally strong.

American Music Hall.

This week's bill at the American Music Hall well upholds the high standard of the William Morris playhouse. The first part of the programme to the other the performance that rarely has been equalled for attractiveness. Lovers of the very best vaudeville will be delighted with this week's offerings.

Joseph Medill Patterson's great sketch "Dope," is a thrilling act, displaying with excellence the evils of the cocaine habit. Herman Lieb and his company present the sketch and it comes to Boston with perfect force, following as it does upon the heels of the crusade conducted against this poison plague. In the role of a wife-victim for powerful acting this sketch stands almost unrivalled in a theatre of this kind.

Lovers of art were wonderfully pleased to see Bronga's Parisian models. Known as the "Hero Bronze Beauties," their professional performance is beyond them heartily welcome. Studies in porcelain and bronze were seen by the performers, who are well-formed young men and women.

Felix and Caire, in the amusing "The Runaway Kids," made the real big hit of the performance in their laughable act. From comedy to song to solo everything was crisp and new. There were no old jokes, no old songs, no old scenes. Everything was up-to-date. The singing and dancing were excellent. The applause and heartiness of the applause showed how well the big audience was pleased with the performance Mr. Dockstader gave them.

Boston Theatre.

A special matinee of "Bright Eyes" was given this afternoon to enable members of the theatrical profession to witness

Denver Dick, and Ralph Ashe as Boston Jake, are clever. Eugenia Besserer as Mabel Gray is admirable. Augusta Jay-gron as Tenderfoot Sal is good, Hollis Holmes as Bridget Farley is amusing, and Fred Lavin, Tom Girons, John C. Leish-man, Ella Jackson and Bessie Baxton do well.

Jasino Theatre.

"Charlie" Waldron presents a burlesque entertainment this week at the new Casino Theatre that judging from the reception given it yesterday at both performances should crowd the house all the week. The attraction is Fred Irwin's show, one of the best burlesque companies on the road. The musical burlesque which has the unique title of "The Pace That Wins," moves at a merry clip and musical numbers, specialties, dances and ensembles follow in bewildering succession. Margaret Bennett has the leading role. The chorus includes a score of pretty girls, who sing and dance well. The comedy is well handled by Harry Campbell, James Crolius, Frank Pierce, James Russell and others and the fun is never permitted to lag during the action of this skit. The piece is beautifully staged and attractively costumed.

The Watson Sisters, two clever singers and dancers, present a splendid specialty in which they are assisted by the Imperial Sextette, six of the best dancers on the American stage. Pierce and Maltese have a clever comedy balancing specialty which pleased all present.

Columbia.

One can enjoy the snappiest sort of a show to-night at the Columbia and enjoy at the same time to the returns of the city election, which will be read from the stage intervals as fast as received by specially leased wire. The entertainment this week is one that rannets burlesque organization known as the Kentucky Belles, one of the best burlesque circuits. Besides the regular burlesque specialties which are looked for in such companies the company is presenting a farce called "Mr. Frank Graham, Edith Randall and Joe Opp. They are in the head of the merrymaking and all ways make good.

Gaiety Theatre.

Theodore Roosevelt in the African jungle has furnished a theme for a clever satire which, under the name of "Teddy in the Jungle," was presented by the Rentz-Santley company at the Gaiety yesterday with a first-class burlesque company, including a chorus of thirty of the shapliest girls ever seen in this theatre. The prima donna is a beauty of prominence and the comedians are funmakers of the first water. The soubrettes are clever and the specialty performers who appear in the olio are mostly from Europe and amazingly effective.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

The continuous bill at the Bowdoin Square Theatre is certainly proving a big success. The Lothrop Stock Company presented the interesting sketches, "The Right Key but the Wrong Room" and another thriller "The Ghost Shirt." Charlotte Hunt, Harold Chichester, Tom Shearer, Edwin Dodson, Florence Hamlin and Sam Bradley suggested the parts remarkably, and what bowed of interest was the vaudeville programme. All the vaudeville features were excellent. Much interest was centered in the moving picture display.

Howard Athenaeum.

There was an immense crowd on hand yesterday at the Howard to see Jack Joel and his world's champion, in an entertaining athletic exhibition, assisted by Kid Clark and Joe Choyer. People would make any show go, but combining them with the musical feature assures success.

Hollis.

John Drew began his second week last night to a good audience with laughable opposite as his quips and cranks in "The Constant Georgie," and admitted his wonderful clever impersonation of the part in men with "legends of the will power." Margaret Dale does a remarkable piece of acting as Micheline and the other members of the cast are effective.

New Palace Theatre.

Peter the Great, the original educated monkey, was given a tremendous reception at the New Palace Theatre yesterday when he made his appearance. This monkey is a wonder. He has actually performed a number of wonderful feats, some of which are quite shocking and others amusing, drinks from a glass and performs a number of physical culture stunts, ending by an exhibition on the horizontal bar that was fondly applauded. Peter will remain the entire week. All the other features are up to the usual standard of excellence.

Theatre Comique.

"The Engineer's Romance," a capital story of railroad life is the headline attraction at the Theatre Comique, and the members of the stock company are giving an interesting "talking picture" act. "Ashes" is a sensational drama that holds the attention of the onlooker till the finish. "The Tale of the Wood" is a thrilling adventure's plight in the solid fastness of the forest, and for a comedy number few excel "The Sent in the Balcony."

Hub.

If the same standard of merit can be maintained as that which is contained in the present bill at the Hub Theatre, there can be little question that, moving pictures and illustrated songs will always prove a big drawing card. The head-line act for this week is Lucien Lloss. Mr. Lloss is the originator and sole proprietor of his act, which consists of four trained Boss.

Scenic.

At the Scenic Temple yesterday large audiences witnessed a high-class vaudeville show with moving pictures as adjuncts. The Lenna Howe Ladies' Orchestra made its usual appeal to the musically inclined.

CHICAGO WELCOMES "AIDA" BY BOSTON OPERA COMPANY

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—With the Auditorium completely filled, with applauses and cheers punctuating every act of "Aida," the Boston opera company was given a rousing welcome by Chicago.

After the second act Director Russell was compelled to respond to the insistent calls, and in the opinion of opera goers such enthusiasm has seldom, if ever, been seen in Chicago during an operatic season.

Bonnesugna, Constantino, Gay and Bakhoff all shared in the glory, while the orchestra under Signor Conti and the chorus won repeated plaudits by their excellent work.

"Aida," the best performance of 'Aida' we have had in many years," was heard on all sides in the intermission, as congratulations were being heaped upon Mr. Russell.

The season of the Boston Opera Company promises to be a record breaker, both artistically and financially, while quality it is expected to be the event of the year.

DANCER WHO WON WAY TO FAVOR AT COLONIAL THEATRE

Bellmore, the young artist who has no small part in the unraveling of the plot. The play is the work of "1910," and the fact that it is a musical comedy and he makes such a good showing in it was warmly welcomed yesterday as both performance and he will continue to play the role during the remainder of the run of "Bright Eyes" in the Castle Square. It craig announces that the third and final week will begin next Monday.

Tremont.

Queen of Sunnybrook Farm," that dainty little rural play with Edith Tallaferro in the title role, has evidently taken hold of Boston in good shape, for a big audience greeted the opening night of the week. The clean, delicious humor of the piece drew generously from the atmosphere of mirth make it a very sweet evening's entertainment.

Majestic.

"Dick Whittington," the big spectacle which the Shubert's are offering at the Majestic began its second week yesterday with a good audience and the production and continues to attract good audiences. Louise Dresser, Irene Dillon, Lewis Cody and Clark and Verdi are the players people would make any show go, but combining them with the musical feature assures success.

Metropolitan Singers Score Big Hit In Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde"

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

The Metropolitan Opera Company of New York was heard in Boston last night for the first time in an auditorium fitted for grand opera. In the Boston Opera House the New Yorkers were as conveniently situated as in the Metropolitan and the bare "blooming days of Mechanics Building and inadequate theatres have gone forever. The opera chosen for the opening was "Tristan und Isolde."

To greet the visitors the Boston society turned out in force and the fact is one of the fact that there are more popular operas than "Tristan und Isolde" a very large and brilliant audience assembled. There were few vacant seats in the orchestra and balconies and several empty boxes, but the heavy character of the opera was responsible for that and a greater sale is expected for the operas to-day.

In the audience were Dupuet and Gatti Casazza, the joint rulers of the Metropolitan company. They expressed themselves as charmed and delighted with the audiences of the Boston Opera House and with the reception to their company.

With Tuesday's conductor and Fremstad, Burrian, and Amato, an unusually fine performance of "Tristan und Isolde" had been promised and the promise was fulfilled.

Toscanini the Centre.

"Tristan und Isolde" was the first of the Wagner music dramas that Toscanini has differed so completely from existing operas that a tremendous controversy has arisen. The critics indeed it as an opera, which was unfair, for it is not an opera but a drama and so such should be considered. It was won its way, however, and is now one of opera goers' demand its production every little while so that they may revel in its gorgeous harmonies.

The fatal love of the Irish princess and the nephew of the King of Cornwell is the gabbling theme of the work, but the passions, hatred, pride, duty and despair are painted in music with consummate skill.

Toscanini was the centre of interest last night in spite of Fremstad's lovely voice and Burrian's splendid singing. Toscanini is the unsolved sensation of New York this season. He is declared to be the greatest conductor who ever came to the Metropolitan.

He is a remarkable man. He knows 110 operas and can direct any of them without reference to the score. Last night he conducted with never a glance at the unpowerful orchestra. He is wonderfully magnetic, his influence over men is almost hypnotic and he is careful in many warmly welcomed yesterday as both performance and he will continue to play the role during the remainder of the run of "Bright Eyes" in the Castle Square. It craig announces that the third and final week will begin next Monday.

Hollis.

John Drew began his second week last night to a good audience with laughable opposite as his quips and cranks in "The constant Georgie," and admitted his wonderful clever impersonation of the part in men with "legends of the will power." Margaret Dale does a remarkable piece of acting as Micheline and the other members of the cast are effective.

New Palace Theatre.

Peter the Great, the original educated monkey, was given a tremendous reception at the New Palace Theatre yesterday when he made his appearance. This monkey is a wonder. He has actually performed a number of wonderful feats, some of which are quite shocking and others amusing, drinks from a glass and performs a number of physical culture stunts, ending by an exhibition on the horizontal bar that was fondly applauded. Peter will remain the entire week. All the other features are up to the usual standard of excellence.

Theatre Comique.

"The Engineer's Romance," a capital story of railroad life is the headline attraction at the Theatre Comique, and the members of the stock company are giving an interesting "talking picture" act. "Ashes" is a sensational drama that holds the attention of the onlooker till the finish. "The Tale of the Wood" is a thrilling adventure's plight in the solid fastness of the forest, and for a comedy number few excel "The Sent in the Balcony."

Hub.

If the same standard of merit can be maintained as that which is contained in the present bill at the Hub Theatre, there can be little question that, moving pictures and illustrated songs will always prove a big drawing card. The head-line act for this week is Lucien Lloss. Mr. Lloss is the originator and sole proprietor of his act, which consists of four trained Boss.

Scenic.

At the Scenic Temple yesterday large audiences witnessed a high-class vaudeville show with moving pictures as adjuncts. The Lenna Howe Ladies' Orchestra made its usual appeal to the musically inclined.

Health and Beauty Talks

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN

E. R. S.—If your hair is spilling at the ends and becoming prematurely gray, it is a sure sign of neglect. What you need is a good, nourishing quinine tonic to put back into your hair the moisture it has lost in one half pint alcohol and add one pint of distilled water. Rub this well into your scalp twice a week and it will put new life and color into your hair in a few weeks. I have found this mixture excellent for removing dandruff, but you must keep on shooping for some time to do this. You will find it splendid to use during the shooping to keep the hair and scalp healthy. It makes the hair glossy and will prevent it from coming out so readily.

Cristina J.—You can't expect to have a nice, rosy complexion as long as you feel tired, listless and have a poor appetite. At this time of the year you need a good, strong splendid and looking your best. I strongly recommend the good system that for you. The one I always found best is made by dissolving one heaping ounce sugar and one ounce kardene in one-half pint boiling water. Strain, then add enough cold water and add two teaspoonfuls each meal and before retiring. It will not only give you a splendid appetite, but that tired feeling, and you will soon notice your face is losing its sallow complexion, receiving pimples and hate. This simmons lotheres the cleanses from the skin and gives it a fine complexion. Cautions makes a delightful shampoo and will soften the hardest water in a few minutes, as it dries quickly. You can get cautions and kardene compose at most hair dresseres' or you can send to me and I will get cautions at your drug store and prepare the shampoo myself. Be careful of cost. Don't use soap on the hair. It is dangerous. Use the yolk of two eggs to fill the hair and causes light streaks in the hair which are so common.

A. B. M.—If your eyes lack brightness and expression, try dropping in each eye daily one drop of the following made by dissolving one ounce of crystos in a pint of water. This will not smart the eyes and is excellent for weak and inflamed eyes. It strengthens the sight, while keeping that eyes clear and lustrous. This is a great help to those who wear glasses and is used constantly by many actresses and society women, who pride themselves on their beautiful, sparkling eyes.

All of the remedies you have tried did no good, are four ounces of parsotts from your druggist and dissolve it in a pint of hot water. Take a teaspoonful before each meal. It generally cuts down flesh in a week and will not injure your health in the least.

A. A.—When you wear a veil, face powder will not help your complexion much, as it rubs off too easily. What you need is a cream that will not show on the skin. The next time you go to your druggist get four ounces of sargo max and dissolve it in one-half pint of hot water. Take a teaspoonful before each meal. It generally cuts down flesh in a week and will not injure your health in the least.

Emma M. A.—A beautiful head of hair adds so much to one's appearance that I would advise you to use some careful of your hair hereafter. You would do well to use a nair net to make your hair stay up and also to keep it from coming out. Try shampooing your hair every two weeks with an ounce of carbtrex dissolved in a cup of hot water and see how much better it will make your hair. This shampoo lathers, cleanses and removes all dandruff. It is a revelation. Cautions makes a delightful shampoo and will soften the hardest water in a few minutes, as it dries quickly. You can get carbtrex and cautions compose at most hair dresseres' or you can send to me and I will get cautions at your drug store and prepare the shampoo myself. Be careful of cost. Don't Risk the Health of Little Children

Best authorities agree that milk is free from harmful germs when formed, unless the cow is actually diseased.

The healthiest cows in the United States give milk from which is made. This pure, clean milk is immediately cooled, which prevents germ formation, and is promptly evaporated and sealed in air-tight cans to keep it pure. It is also richer than the average because the same climatic conditions—green grass the year 'round and pure, clean waters—which make cows healthier, on the north Pacific coast, also make the milk purer, better, more delicate in flavor.

Carnation Milk

"Carnation Milk—the Modern Milkman"

CARNATION FUDGE.—Two cups sugar, ½ cake good chocolate (unsweetened), butter the size of an egg, a scant half can of Carnation Milk. Put all in a sauce pan and allow to boil until it forms a soft ball in cold water. When cooked add one tablespoon of vanilla and stir until thick. Then pour into buttered pans and allow to cool. Cut in squares.

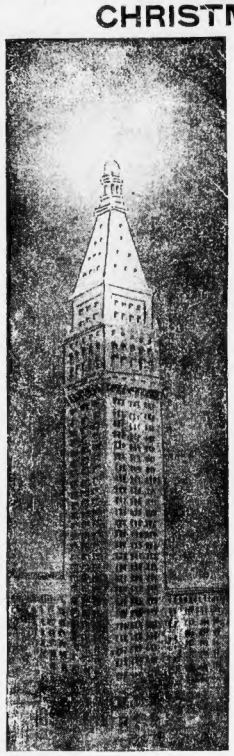
THE LIGHT THAT NEVER FAILS

CHRISTMAS ANNOUNCEMENT



THE Company has allotted extraordinary BONUSES to its Industrial policy-holders payable in 1910. These are CASH BONUSES which may be used in payment of premiums upon their Industrial policies. They were not promised in the policies, either expressly or by implication, the policies being strictly non-participating. No such bonus has ever been given by any company to its policy-holders, and no such bonus ever will be given by any other company.

BONUSES TO LIVING POLICY-HOLDERS

To every holder of an Industrial whole life policy of the Company who shall pass the age of 75 during 1910, a bonus on its anniversary date thereafter equal to premiums for ..... 52 weeks

To every holder of an Industrial policy in force issued in 1879 and 1880, a bonus on its anniversary date equal to premiums for ..... 26 weeks

To every holder of an Industrial policy in force issued in 1881-2-3-4-5, a bonus on its anniversary date equal to premiums for ..... 20 weeks

To every holder of an Industrial whole life policy in force issued in 1886-7-8-9-1890, a bonus on its anniversary date equal to premiums for ..... 15 weeks

To every holder of an Industrial whole life policy in force issued in 1891-2-3-4-5, a bonus on its anniversary date equal to premiums for ..... 10 weeks

To every holder of an Industrial whole life or increasing life and endowment policy issued in any year from 1896 to 1905 inclusive, a bonus on its anniversary date equal to premiums for ..... 5 weeks

These bonuses are thus for percentages varying from about TEN to ONE HUNDRED PER CENT. of the amount of weekly premiums for a year. It will be observed that the bonuses are graduated by the age of the policies.

The whole life policies issued between January 1, 1907, and July 1, 1909, have received a reversionary dividend of about ten per cent. of their face during the past year (that is, have been increased in amount about ten per cent). This cost the Company $600,000 in 1909; and will cost many hundreds of thousands of dollars in subsequent years in increased Reserve. The whole life policies, issued since July 1, 1909, have been increased about ten per cent. in amount above the amount of insurance previously provided for the same respective premiums.

BONUSES ON DEATH CLAIMS

Death Claimants on whole life policies issued between January 1, 1907, and July 1, 1909, whose claims had been settled, have received in the last six months a payment of mortuary bonuses of about ten per cent. in addition to the amount previously received, at a cost to the Company of over $250,000.

Payment on Death Claims in 1910 will be increased over and above the face of the Industrial policies by amounts determined by the following scale:

When death occurs after policy has been in force over 5 years..... 5%
When death occurs after policy has been in force over 10 years..... 10%
When death occurs after policy has been in force over 15 years..... 15%
When death occurs after policy has been in force over 20 years..... 20%
When death occurs after policy has been in force over 25 years..... 25%
When death occurs after policy has been in force over 30 years..... 30%

The cost to the Company of these CASH bonuses is estimated at

$5,232,448.20

Added to the bonuses heretofore paid for the last sixteen years OVER AND ABOVE THE PROMISES MADE IN THE POLICIES, this will bring the total CASH bonuses up to Twenty-one Millions of Dollars in CASH in 17 Years!

The Additional Cost of Concessions in Reserve Liability has been Four Millions of Dollars

The sources of these bonuses are:

1. Decrease in expenses—TEN PER CENT. in nine years to the close of 1908.
2. Saving in the Mortality which was expected when policies were issued.
3. Gains in Interest actually earned over the amount required by statute for accumulation of Reserves.
4. The fact that on a premium income of nearly $50,000,000 a year the Stockholders receive only $140,000, which is more than earned from the income of their own capital and surplus; the balance of such income going to the increase of the fund from which Bonuses are paid.

'I WANT TO GO HOME!' WAILS ELOPING GIRL CAUGHT IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—"Oh, I'm so glad it's all over. I want to go home! I want to forget this!"

Roberta Reist de Janou, the $10,000,000 Philadelphia heiress, uttered this wail today after a night in the police station. A full knowledge of the seriousness of her escapade—of her flight with the waiter, Ferdinand Cohen, of their travels up and down the land, and their final capture here after the search prosecuted with all the jealousy of Cohen's abandoned wife—had failed for nearly two weeks—seemed to have come to the slender school girl.

And she herself shouldered the blame. Cohen was willing, and he, too, placed the responsibility on her.

Cohen spent the night in a police cell at the Chicago avenue station; the girl was kept in the Harrison street annex. Today preparations for their removal to Philadelphia were made.

Cohen has consented to return to Pennsylvania without fighting extradition. The girl's composure, which was so noticeable when she and Cohen were found in the furnished rooming house, posing as Robert Irving and daughter, was not so apparent today. The tragic, even sordid end of her romance had upon her, and bit by bit she seemed to be realizing that her companion was not the hero she had imagined.

When the few belongings of Miss De Janou and Cohen were searched early today forty-two letters and notes written by the girl and expressing her love and devotion for the waiter were found. The letters written to her father, attempting to exonerate Cohen from all blame for their elopement, were also taken by the police. Miss De Janou's letters follow:

Jan. 3, 1910.

This is to certify that I, Roberta De Janou, have left my home at the Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia of my own accord, and I also acknowledge that I asked Fred Cohen to take me with him, and after refusing several times he finally consented to take me as his cousin. He has always treated me as such, and I always looked upon him as my true friend and protector.

I agreed to pay all my own expenses, and the said Fred Cohen has never encouraged or assisted me in leaving home. To-day is the sixth day we have been together, and Fred has treated me just as if I was his own daughter, having nothing but my welfare in view. This will exonerate Fred Cohen from any blame whatsoever, as it was I who begged him to take me away.

ROBERTA DE JANOU.

Threatened Suicide.

Jan. 5, 1910—It is now eight days since I left home, and I am writing this of my own free will, in case we should get caught, for I will very probably end my life if that occurs, and I want to free Fred Cohen from all blame whatever, as it was all my own fault, and every day since we left Philadelphia he has repeatedly requested me to go home, but I positively refused to do that and I told him I would kill myself if he left me alone or informed them at home as to my whereabouts. He has not encouraged me in any way. In fact, he has treated me as though I were his own daughter, always looking out for my welfare and comfort, and at the same time treating me with the utmost respect, so if anything does occur I beg my father and Guildfuine not to prosecute him, as this was all done upon my own request. In fact, I frightened him into it by threatening to end my life if he won't go with me, as I did not want to be sent away to school by my father and grandfather ever had any love for me they will think Fred Cohen for the great care he has taken of me since we have been together.

ROBERTA DE JANOU.

The notes which Miss De Janou passed to Cohen while she dined in the hotel where he was waiter read as follows:

"My Sweetheart Papa."

My Dearest Sweetheart Papa—I am afraid I might not have a chance to talk to you to-night, so I think I had better write this: Oh, Fred, I am feeling so lonesome and sad all the time. How I do wish that I could have you in here to talk to me, as you always cheer me up. Good-bigh, dear sweetheart Papa.

YOUR LITTLE GIRL.

"Hello, beautiful eyes," read one note, and on the back of this the answer, "Hello."

"I am awfully sorry, sweetheart papa, that I have not been able to kiss you good morning or even speak to you, but I hope we will have a chance before 7:30. Now, Fred, if you really want me with you in the future you will have to be more careful than you are, for papa No. 1 is watching closely, more so than we think, and he said something about you last night. Please don't ever throw any more notes at me like you did last night, and only hand them to me when you are sure there is no one about, for if I am to go with you we will have to be more careful than we are at the present time. I have something funny to tell you when I see you again. Papa, dear, do you really think I will be able to get away without them finding me? I feel frightened all the time and will continue to feel that way."

"I don't want to die now," she said today. "Oh, I wanted to when I threatened suicide, I guess. But I want to go live with my father in New York or my grandfather in Philadelphia."

Word was anxiously awaited to-day by the girl from her father and grandfather.

"I'll go to school if they want me to," she continued. "I did not want to go before—it was so lonely I couldn't stand it. But I'm through with running away."

Cohen reiterated that he had done nothing wrong and that Miss De Janou had lured him from his home. The girl corroborated persisted in declaring that he would explain the affair satisfactorily to his wife and return to her.

ELECTION HAS NO EFFECT ON REALTY MART

Politics interfered very little, apparently, with the real estate market to-day, for a number of very good sales was reported throughout the city and suburbs.

J. Sumner Draper and Mark Temple bowling have sold to the Municipal Real Estate Trust, of which Moses Williams and James M. Colman et al. are the trustees, the property purchased last week by them at Nos. 19 and 25 High street, corner of Nos. 173-177 Federal street, and extending through to Summer street. The property, comprising a four-story and basement brick building and 4,845 square feet of land, is all assessed for $243,800, of which $100,000 is on the land. Seth P. & T. C. Snow were the brokers in the transaction.

Messrs. Temple & Bowling have purchased the property at No. 281 Brookline avenue, near Bellevue street, comprising a frame dwelling and 13,000 square feet of land. The property is taxed on a total valuation of $17,200, of which $15,000 is on the land. Peter Williams et al. of New York were the grantors, and William Smith & Sons were the brokers. Terms were private.

In the South End, Mary A. McNamara has sold to Andrew J. Cherr the four-story and basement steel frame, brick house and 1,500 square feet of land at No. 3 Concord square, near Tremont street. The property is assessed for a total of $7,900, of which $3,200 is on the land.

Henry C. Thomas F. Doherty has sold the new three-family house at No. 132 Talbot avenue, near Blue street, Dorchester, to Mr. Annie Bray, who buys for an investment. It is assessed for $6,000, of which $1,500 is on the land.

In the same suburb Thomas Harris has sold to Joseph Bailey a frame dwelling and 4,000 square feet of land on Bowdoin street, near Normandy street, all taxed for $6,900. The land is rated for $1,400.

Cobe F. Smith has sold to Bridget Black the frame house and 6,280 square feet of land at No. 102 Magnolia street, corner of Quincy street, Dorchester. This estate is taxed on a total valuation of $5,700, of which amount $2,200 is on the land.

Another Dorchester property sold is that at Nos. 15-19 Freeport street, near Dayton street, and adjoining the estate of the purchasers, has been bought by Mary A. Hall et al., executors under Florentine Walters. It is all assessed for $7,000, of which $800 is on the 2,750 square feet of land. There is also a frame house on the lot. It is taken in the Harrison Square improvement plan.

In Roxbury the frame house and 2,400 square feet of land at No. 32 Mozart street, near Armstrong street, have been sold by Sophia Polak to Jean D. Reynolds. This estate is taxed for a total of $5,000, of which $900 is on the land.

Walter Hartshone has sold to the Congregation Ahabai Brith Shalom, title passing through David M. Hirson, the property at No. 65 Binford street, in Dorchester. The property, comprising a two-family house and brick house, and 1,004 square feet of land, all assessed for $2,200, of which $500 is on the land.

In the same suburb the frame house and 1,037 square feet of land at No. 50 Day street, near Bellevue, have been sold by Samuel Robinson to Michael Mcann. The estate is taxed for $1,300, $300 being on the land.

The Hyde Park Fuel Agency has sold for the lessee, George R. Williams, the complete furnishings and the good will of the Norwood House, situated at the corner of Main and another street, Norwood, to Mr. Fellers Hall, and has been continuously conducted as a hotel for over a century. The buyer is A. L. Whitney of Lexington, Worcester county, late member of the Legislature from that district, who has already taken possession.

GRANDFATHER WILL FORGIVE GIRL, BUT PROSECUTE WAITER

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 11.—Robert Reist, the millionaire grandfather of Roberta de Janou, who is to inherit his fortune of $10,000,000, and who eloped from the Bellevue-Stratford with waiter Cohen, declared to himself to-day that to-day, but friends say Mr. Reist is determined to prosecute Cohen, more so than we think, and is ready to forgive his granddaughter, take her back to his home and treat her as he always has done, but he is bitter against the waiter. The day Roberta eloped with the bald-headed married man three times her own age, Mr. Reist had adoption papers prepared which would make the girl his sole heiress. He had intended leaving the papers with her father, Robert Reist de Janou, who died five weeks ago.

Detectives Emanuel and Scanlon of the central office left here at midnight for Chicago. They will arrive there to-night and will take steps at once to extradite Cohen.

Harcuvar Copper Advance CERTAIN

Listed on N. Y. Curb about 6 months ago, this stock shows nearly 200% profit to its holders. Starting at 25c, market closed Saturday at 65c. Opened with heavy sales Monday morning at 70 and closed strong at 73.

We were not interested in this security in the early stages of its career, but have watched its market movements closely and are convinced, after careful examination of the property and its directorate, that from a speculative as well as an investment standpoint no other issue on the N. Y. Curb presents better opportunity for good substantial profits.

The property is situated in Yuma County, Arizona, and has and is getting the benefit of conscientious and intelligent development work.

The ore bodies have been fully defined and are being developed in depth through a tunnel.

This tunnel has cost a substantial sum already and is now beginning to demonstrate that vast copper riches are there in depth ready for shipment.

Harcuvar Is Another Arizona Winner

We are convinced that the market price to day represents only a fraction of what it is worth, and are advising and urging all our clients and the public in general to buy it at present prices. Dollar a share will look cheap in a few weeks, and later on we expect this issue to sell at from $3 to $5.

The following telegram was received by the management Thursday, January 6, 1910:—

Struck small vein of ore. Face mineralized. Sending samples by express. Made 34½ feet last month.

R. R. MacDONALD, Superintendent.

The finding of ore twenty feet from the main vein in the tunnel is only a small indication of the results to be anticipated when the main ore zone is encountered within the next few weeks.

STATE STREET NEWS OF INTEREST TO INVESTORS

Apparently bankers are unwilling to see any advance, or loose speculation at this time.

$ $ $

But all insist that investment buying is of a good kind.

$ $ $

All State Street is in alarm over what one man may do to the stock market if he gets mad enough. Stock Exchange expects to give him cause for anger to-morrow when the decision is announced in the Rock Island affair.

$ $ $

In order to justify the punishment of brokers who are apparently innocent of intentional wrong doing, the exchange will be compelled to name a man not a member of the board. There are many reasons for believing that nothing of importance will happen in the market when the facts are bluntly stated by the Stock Exchange governors, but the Street considers the proposed proceedings so unusual that its nerves are on edge. This nervous spell is a good thing for the market, because there is nothing wrong fundamentally.

$ $ $

Mr. Malcolm N. Frey, for the past five years with Wrenn Bros. & Co., has recently associated himself with Mr. Edgar B. Elwell, members of the New York and Boston Stock Exchanges. Mr. Frey is the son of H. F. Frey, former president of Alhonet and Centennial.

$ $ $

Chandler Hovey, with Bradlee & Cutler, has been elected a member of the Boston Stock Exchange. Mr. Hovey will open an office in the William Lawrence building at the corner of Devonshire and Water streets under the firm name of Chandler Hovey & Co.

$ $ $

Tucker, Anthony & Co. have opened a branch office at Norwich, Ct., under the charge of Lucius Briggs.

$ $ $

William Fay Donke has become associated with Downer & Co.

$ $ $

At the annual meeting of the International Trust Company directors were re-elected. The vacancies in the board caused by the resignations of Roland O. Lamb, Oliver Mink and John Hogg were not filled.

$ $ $

The Boston Stock Exchange is stated to have received the engineer's report on the Cactus mine and it is understood the charges against it will be submitted to the governing department of the exchange as soon as the transfer of the Development Company into the Copper Company takes place.

$ $ $

Rhode Island Coal Company has recently shipped a carload of coal to the Fall River Gas Works, and one to Minneapolis, for trial, and will also, as soon as possible, make shipment to the New England Gas and Coke Company at Everett, for the same purpose.

$ $ $

Tamarack rights sold at $4, or an equivalent of $17 for subscriptions to the new Cliff stock.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

WEAK TRADING IN N. Y. STOCKS

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Stocks were weak in the early trading to-day with Steel, the coppers and the Harriman shares under special pressure. Trading was very active and there seemed to be genuine liquidation by many investors. Some of the specialties that have been advancing recently broke sharply, notable among them being Reading, which declined 3½ points in the first few minutes of business. Rock Island was one of the weak stocks and sold down to 44½, a decline of 2½ points. Steel declined ½ on the contrary advanced one point.

The copper stocks were sold freely by traders. The cause of the selling was primarily the rumors of stocks being overloaded by operators associated with the Rock Island group in preparation for selection of the Stock Exchange governors, when drastic punishment is to be administered to several members of the board for the Rock Island scandal of over two weeks ago.

FAINT TAIL SEEN TRAILING COMET

A straight and slender tail has been discovered trailing behind the nucleus of Halley's comet, according to a despatch received at the Harvard Observatory from Professor E. B. Frost of the Yerkes Observatory. The tail is a faint one as yet, about 10 minutes in length and at an angle of 90 degrees.

LAKE COPPER CHIEF FACTOR

STATE STREET, Jan. 11.—Speculation centered in Lake Copper stock this forenoon and the price rose 2¾ points to 82¾, which is a new high for the past year. The ease with which it goes up is a surprise to the street. Reactions, when they occur, are comparatively slight. The main argument for strength of Lake is the fact that there are but 85,000 shares of stock outstanding, which makes it an easy matter for a few pools in the stock, although not organized stock, which are working for higher prices.

Other strong stocks this forenoon were in companies contiguous to the Lake property. North Lake rose to 9 and Arcadian to 9½. Gilroy started from 10 to 11¾, and the stock followed for 30% more. Butte, on the other hand, was dull and declined from 44¼ to 44.

Curb trading was active and prices were strong. Onco and Calaveras were the active specialties.

BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, JANUARY 11, 1910

"Roosevelt President, Pinchot Secretary of Agriculture"

Copyright, 1910, by American Journal-Examiner

From President Taft down to the lowest heeler working to steal public property for private corporations no sane man doubts that Gifford Pinchot, just removed by Taft from the office of chief of the Forestry Bureau, is honest and really interested in the public welfare.

As for Richard A. Ballinger, Secretary of the Interior, the facts concerning him will come out gradually. Public opinion is divided. The public opinion in the office of the corporations believes that Mr. Ballinger is a very good man.

But public opinion OUTSIDE of corporation offices believes that Mr. Ballinger represents private interests and not the public.

With things lined up in that fashion, the public learns that Mr. Pinchot, who protected public forests against thieves, has been put out of office by President Taft. And the public believes that Mr. Ballinger, in some way or other, is to be whitewashed, disinfected and made clean of the charges that have been publicly brought against him.

Do not be in TOO great a hurry to condemn Mr. Taft. It is true that he has dismissed from office one of the most faithful, energetic, fearless men that have served the public in years.

And it is also true that he appears to resent criticism of Ballinger, whose value is doubtful, to put it mildly.

On the other hand, Mr. Taft is the head of the government, responsible for the government. Mr. Pinchot has talked very freely, rather antagonistically, and decidedly disrespectfully. He has practically defied Taft to remove him and Taft has removed him.

Leaving out the question of Pinchot's value, or of Ballinger's trust servitude, every fair-minded man must admit that Mr. Pinchot did what he could to force Taft to dismiss him. And it must be admitted that almost any man at the head of a big organization—unless he were as long-suffering, patient and conscientious as Abraham Lincoln—would dismiss Pinchot under similar circumstances.

At the same time the dismissal of this faithful man, trying perhaps too radically and too aggressively to defend the public against the public thieves, is a very important development in politics. There isn't the slightest doubt that it will result in very lively talking on the part of Mr. Roosevelt when he shoots his last elephant and "bowls over" the last antelope of his present expedition.

Mr. Harry L. Stone sends a prophecy which will interest readers. Here is his letter, which he heads "The Beginning of the End":

January 7, 1910, is the date which marks the death throes of party lines!

Mr. Roosevelt will be the next President of the United States!

He will be elected on a popular ticket, supported by the solid SOUTH, the solid WEST and NORTHWEST.

The insurgents will win votes for him and all honest men vote for him.

He will poll the biggest vote in history!

Pinchot for Secretary of Agriculture!

Glavis for Secretary of the Interior!

Stop! Look!! Listen!!!

Yours truly, HARRY L. STONE.

The Boston American is not prepared to indorse Mr. Stone's prophecy or make of it an American prophecy.

THE THIN-SKINNED DEVOTION OF ROOSEVELT TO TAFT HAS BEEN SMASHED WITH A HAMMER. There will be a lively fight between Roosevelt and Taft, open or secret. And Roosevelt's friends will try to make him President with Pinchot's dismissal as one war cry.

Our own impression is that the stand-pat Republicans, with the great power of the officeholders and the infinitely greater power of solidly unorganized capital, will prove too much for Mr. Roosevelt and whatever of public indignation he may accumulate in his train.

This isn't the government of sentiment, or one in which explosions, OUTSIDE OF OFFICE, can have much effect. Even while he was in office, and while he THOUGHT he was doing exactly what he wanted to do, and perpetuating "My policies," Mr. Roosevelt, guided by the cunning Elihu Root, whom the trusts had put next to him, was making a President of Taft. And Mr. Taft, solid, fat, good natured, quite naturally thinks that his very rich brother and his very rich friend Rockefeller, and so on, are best able to manage the country. Taft and officeholders and money combined will prevent Mr. Roosevelt from becoming in future anything more than a loud and interesting noise.

Politics will not be dull when the elephant hunter comes home. Disagreeable truths and falsehoods will fly—and intelligent voters may profit.

A Selfish and Stupid Attempt to Limit Immigration

A Farmer Passing Laws to Keep Oxen, Cows, Sheep and Horses Off His Farm Would Be an Idiot. There Are Many Such Idiots in Congress

Copyright, 1910, by American Journal-Examiner

In the House of Representatives of the United States Mr. Hayes has introduced a bill called "A bill to further regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States." This bill, to begin with, says that there must be collected a tax of ten dollars for every alien entering the United States, "instead of the sum of four dollars now required by said act."

What does that mean? It means that this country, which brags about being a home for the oppressed and the land of opportunity, proposes in a stingy, mean and unworthy and contemptible fashion to steal ten dollars from every man, woman and child coming to this country.

We have a right to keep out the criminals and the diseased and the Asiatic races, with which we are unwilling to compete.

But we have no right to say to others of God's creatures on this earth, "You shall not come into this part of the world unless you pay at the door." This Hayes bill is a cowardly and unworthy scheme to keep out those that most need the welcome that Americans owe to others less lucky.

What are we all but immigrants, sons and daughters of men of whom a vast majority came here penniless, or nearly so?

It is a disgraceful thing to think that a man coming over here with his children, determined to abide by our laws, willing to help in our work, should be held up as though he were entering some forbidden dive and asked to pay ten dollars apiece for his family.

Can anybody conceive of anything more disgraceful to the United States? More of this bill another day.

ELECTION DAY GAVE THEM AN EXCUSE

OW-WOW! SAY PERD, IT'S ELECTION DAY! I SPOSE WE OUGHT TO GET UP AND VOTE BEFORE GOING TO THE STORE
AW-FORGET IT. LET'S SLEEP AWHILE - LONGER INSTEAD. THEY CAN GET ALONG WITHOUT OUR VOTE
DING DONG DING
YE-E-OW! GEE! I'M STILL SLEEPY. WHAT DO YOU THINK - IT'S ALMOST 10 O'CLOCK.
WHAT'S THE ODDS. WE'LL TAKE IT EASY WHILE WE'RE ABOUT IT.
CINCH!
JUST GETTING IN HALL-ROOM? TOOK YOU A LONG TIME TO VOTE DIDN'T IT? THE FLOUR WALKER WAS ASKING ABOUT YOU.
OH HE WAS WAS HE. POOH POOH FOR HIM. I GUESS A MAN IS ENTITLED TO A LITTLE TIME TO VOTE, IN.
WHAT DOES HE THINK THIS PLACE IS ANYHOW, A SWEAT-SHOP?
MR. HALL ROOM, WHERE WERE YOU ALL THE MORNING?
SURELY MR. HIGHS, AS CITIZENS OF THIS GLORIOUS REPUBLIC, YOU WOULDN'T HAVE US NEGLECT OUR DUTY BY ABSENTING OURSELVES FROM THE POLLS WOULD YOU? THE LINE WAS VERY LONG AND WE HAD TO AWAIT OUR TURN SURE!
YES, I'M THE LEADER OF THE DISTRICT. THESE BOYS VOTE OR NOT SO. THESE BOYS WON'T DO ANYMORE VOTING TO DAY. FURTHER MORE MR HALL ROOM, YOU WILL EACH BE DOCKED A HALF DAYS PAY
SAY, HALL ROOM, AREN'T YOU GOIN' TO VOTE? IT'S ALMOST O'CLOCK AN THE POLLS WILL CLOSE SOON.
CAN'T YOU GET AWAY FOR A FEW MINUTES. WE NEED YOUR VOTE

It is generally conceded that the Boston American has a greater circulation than all the other Boston evening papers combined, and that it is as strong in Boston in the evening field as, for example, a paper of the combined strength of the Evening Journal and Evening World would be in New York City, or the Evening American and Evening News in Chicago.—Advertisers' Magazine.

ELBERT HUBBARD'S ARTICLE

Free Speech and Anarchy

Especially Written for the American

By ELBERT HUBBARD

Copyright, 1910, by American Journal-Examiner

AND as the Philadelphia Judge, having listened to the able plea of Emma Goldman in behalf of free speech, and agreeing with very much that she had to offer, disposed of the question by saying, "There must be a limit to the use of language. And, while the expression of an individual opinion is proper, yet when purposely or otherwise the expression incites others to deeds of violence the limit is reached, and the duty of the police is then to take steps to protect the lives, persons and property of the public. The prayer for an injunction is denied."

I, too, believe in free speech. It has been my cry for twenty-five years. Yet I fully realize that there must of necessity be a limit placed on the exercise of the tongue.

Incendiarism is setting fire to property. But if you see a man piling hay against your house and pouring on kerosene, the plea of the man that he has no matches and means nothing wrong will not excuse him.

Upon the police falls the responsibility of protecting property and keeping the peace. For the courts to restrain the police from interfering with a speaker who has in the past by his words incited to deeds of violence and lawlessness does not seem sensible or right. There is one thing quite as sacred as free speech, and that is the right of the people to go about their peaceful occupations and to enjoy the fruits of their labor.

Not long ago I was talking to a zealous Marxian on the subject of free speech and the preaching of discontent. In the conversation I voiced the necessity of placing a limit on inflammatory utterances. His answer was: "If I had my way any one who argues against free speech as you do should be suppressed."

His ancestry was Celtic.

In the law, the lie is the first blow. That is, you can assault a man with a murderous tongue the same as a murderous weapon.

If a man stands in the street and uses language that may cause some one to throw a brick through my window, he is not exercising a right or a privilege within the intent of the law, and the police should interfere and restrain the wordy talkist-mus, even though he claim to be a messianic philosopher.

In a "free society"—that is, a society without law—would there be more free speech than now? Not exactly.

The man who lifted up his voice against certain people or certain things would be suppressed as quickly as an Orangeman who got numerous on the 17th of March.

The assault of the tongue would find a quick limit, for Hinky Dink would forge and desire of the many.

to the fore and fix bounds to both speech and action. Free speech would be limited by Hinky to what he thought proper and right.

In every community there are the lawless, careless, slipshod folks with small grasp on the truth that one man's rights ends where another's begins. These people cut their initials in places that would be better unadorned; they pull up flowers by the roots; lift gates off their hinges; strew papers on the street; shout, yell and rush, rub when honest men are asleep.

Along railroad lines we see where this type of person has used the signs for targets and filled them with birdshot. Depredations of this small, but annoying, sort are seen by the traveler from Maine to the Gulf of Mexico.

In the elevated and subway trains in New York rowdyism on Saturday and Sunday nights recently became intolerable. The loafers insulted women, frightened children and often assaulted men. They roamed through the cars, knocking off hats, sprinkling ink and passing out language that was atrocious.

The employes were powerless.

To stamp the thing out, one hundred men were selected from the traffic squad. These men, mostly young, mingled with the crowds on the cars from 6 to 10 o'clock. They wore citizens' clothes and often shabby garments. But they were men who could hit quick and hard.

When lawlessness started they took a sudden hand. On all station platforms were policemen to receive prisoners.

Several hundred rowdies were rounded up, subdued, handcuffed and locked up.

One offender pleaded the right of free speech, and got a calloused fist in his mouth by way of reply.

Now, in a state of anarchy, if hoodlumism started, what would we do?

Well, we would endure it for a time, and then the better class of citizens would pick out a few hard-hitting men and appoint them a committee to enforce decency and order.

If anarchy prevailed, I would post a notice on my farm that any one shooting my chickens and destroying my trees would be allowed to do it three times, and then he would get his block knocked off, or get shot so full of holes he would look like pepper box.

Other peaceful neighbors would join with me, and we would pass rules as to what was allowable and what not.

Then we would hire a stocky man, freckled, with bow legs, to see that these rules were enforced.

So, then, we would again have law, for law simply formulates the will, wish

The Strike in Bombiloo

By WEX JONES

IN Bombiloo the beautiful, that never-changing clime,
The natives wear but little clothes, whatever be the time;
Their morning dress is low on top and very high below—
It's handy on a rainy day, but awkward in a blow.

Their evening dress is simpler, for when they go to bed
They fold their kilt into a pad to place beneath the head.
The natives thus want little clothes, they have no stylish rad,
But the little that they do want is wanted mighty bad.

The girls who made the garments were hired by Bangaroo,
The cruel chief who made one hand perform the work of two.
From early dawn till darkness fell the superintendent saw
Each girl was busy pleating the garments out of straw.

The fisher girls had gay old times at dances on the sand,
And everywhere was merriment throughout that favored land,
Save only with them "shirtwaist" girls, who moaned their cruel luck,
Until at last with one accord the whole caboodle struck.

He simply sent for extra hands from the first adjacent Isle.
He told the people to be calm; the kilts they had would last
Until the strike-enforced delay in making more was past.

As no deliveries were made, the people's worry grew.
For clothes were falling into bits all over Bombiloo—
And the panic of the populace no pen could ever draw
When they learned the daring strikers had set fire to all the straw!

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

COLD STORAGE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I have read with much interest the various reasons that your readers give for the increased cost of living. To my mind the one great reason is "cold storage."

Where do all the chickens, turkeys, geese, ducks, eggs, fruit, beef, lamb, mutton, sheep, pork, etc., go when the supply is greater than the demand? Answer, cold storage—to be doled out to the public in such doses as may be necessary to keep up the price.

In the good old days before cold storage became a prominent factor in the commission of the prices of foodstuffs, we could buy everything at very much lower prices than we can to-day; but when it becomes possible for the cold storage agents to scour the highways and byways of this country and gather up every chicken and turkey which can be found and pack them away for future delivery, why shouldn't prices advance?

DEFENDS THE JEWS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Allow me, in the name of my people, to thank you for the editorial headed "Christmas Day Is To-morrow." Not only does that editorial aid us to confute the statements of our Gentile neighbors respecting the crucifixion of Christ, but it creates also a closer relation of friendship between the Jews and those in question.

I am gratified to believe that the ignorance of our neighbors of the Roman laws and customs of the time that Christ was brought to death induces them to hold the Jews responsible for it. But a little reflection upon the Jewish laws will disclose the entire truth.

I am also glad to say that the animosity between the two sects is constantly abating, and that in the near future the spirit of brotherhood is destined to prevail among all, regardless of creed, race or religion.
